Mrs. McPherson, Queen Bee.

Man Is New, Says Ford.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IMPORTANT FLYING NEWS. Two plucky Germans with a Portuguese companion, flying to the United States from Lisbon, via the Azores, were reported sighted yesterday afternoon by a steamer 395 miles east of Halifax and were expected in New York today.

If the fliers succeed you will soon hear on the radio some interesting names. Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, Germans; Fernando Costa Viega, Portuguese. They hopped from Juncal Do Sol. Christopher Columbus doubtless has heard of them already.

A BRITISH FLIER. Lieut. J. N. Boothman, won the Schneider trophy, now permanently Great Britain's property. He averaged 340.08 miles an hour, over a triangular course. This beats the best previous record, also British. In a magnificent performance, another British flier, Lieut. Stainforth, set a speed record, flying at 404 miles an hour.

A nation that can make such airplanes and find men to run them ought not to be discouraged about a few million pounds sterling one way or the other.

It is what men have in their brains and hearts, not the gold reserve that makes a country.

This country, with its gold piled up, and France, too, for that matter, should remember that Alexander conquered rich Persia when all the money he got from his father was less than what he afterward spent on scientific research for Aristotle.

ON SEPTEMBER 23 the United States air mail will celebrate its twentieth anniversary. President Hoover, his predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, the Postmaster General are to be thanked for their encouragement of the air mail, most powerful in developing and encouraging the American airplane industry.

INTERESTING WAS the marriage, in an airplane, of beautiful Aimee Semple McPherson and "Pharoah" Hutton, choir leader. Mrs. McPherson took the husband up, and with Heaven and future happiness above them, they were married.

Everybody wishes them well, and the husband, who has doubtless read Maeterlinck's "Life of the Bee," may congratulate himself on the happy ending of his wedding flight with Queen Aimee.

When a queen bee flies up with her husband, she comes down to live happy and busy ever after. He comes down dead. Nature and science are kinder to human husbands? Sometimes.

THE AMERICAN BAR Association meeting next Thursday at Atlantic City might discuss the assistance that the legal profession, on and off the bench, occasionally offers to criminals.

The Mayor of one of New York's big cities, who understands criminals, says, his exact words being given:

"Two coppers, young and honest, pick up a couple of criminals. The latter say, 'Boys, can we talk to you?' The young coppers ask, 'Talk about what?'

"The criminals say, 'Well, we have got $1,000 here, $500 apiece for each of you. Does that talk?'

"The coppers, young and still honest, take the two criminals to court. A criminal lawyer puts up a holler about the Constitution, and the rights of his clients. They are released. The lawyer gets the thousand dollars and the criminals, as they leave court, turn to the two policemen and say, 'You boys are suckers; you might as well have got the money as have him get it.'"

A NUMBER of distinguished scientists, and Henry Ford, answered Adolph S. Ochs' interesting question:

"What will the next 80 years bring forth?"

The last words of Henry Ford's reply are as encouraging as anything that could be said to the human race:

"The newest thing in the world is the human being. And the greatest changes are to be looked for in him."

Bacon used to say, "We are the ancients," meaning that the human race had been so much longer on the earth in his day, than in the days of the ancients. But we, all of us, are mere children, creatures of yesterday.

ONLY 12,000 years ago, we lived in the late stone age, and our greatest achievement was a flint, well sharpened, a spear, perhaps a bow and arrow, to kill the enemy.

Compare that "tool" with the 150,000 horsepower steam engine that Henry Ford recently bought from Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company. Those who will hear Mr. Swope on the radio tomorrow night will be interested to know that Henry Ford calls him "the best salesman I ever saw."

If we have progressed from a sharpened flint to a 150,000-horse power engine, airplane, submarine, tractor, and knowledge of the atom, in 12,000 years, How far shall we go in the next 12,000,000 years?

Science assures us that the earth is already at least one billion years old, and that man can look forward to hundreds of millions of years more.

A QUEER CREATURE is Gandhi, of India, who talked on the radio day before yesterday.

Yesterday he attended the opening of the great conference on Indian affairs, for which he had traveled thousands of miles, and said not a word, only smil-

YACHTSMAN ALIVE, WIFE BELIEVES

Convinced Husband Escaped Death in Pirate Attack; Admits Story Is 'Illogical'

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(AP.)— District Attorney Alexander Blue announced today that Mrs. Benjamin Collings, of Stamford, Conn., whose husband disappeared from their cabin cruiser in Long Island Sound last week, had told him she believed Collings still alive.

Blue questioned Mrs. Collings at length yesterday after telling her he did not believe her story of two men boarding the cruiser, tying her husband and throwing him overboard and then abducting her. Today he said that during this examination she admitted her story was "illogical" although she insisted it was true.

He said he asked her if she didn't believe her husband still alive and she replied she did. He asked her then on what she based this belief and she said it was just a conviction without any reason to back it up.

CHECK IMPOSSIBLE

"The statement of Mrs. Collings is to say the least, remarkable. At the present time it is impossible to prove or disprove what she says. Whether Mr. Collings is alive or dead no one can say with absolute certainty. Until his body is found, if dead, certain material facts as told by Mrs. Collings cannot

Pete O'Hara Gets Lead On Hagen

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 15.—Peter O'Hara, professional at the Westmoreland Country Club, Pittsburgh, was leading Walter Hagen, five times winner of the title, 3 up, after 18 holes of their 36-hole first round match in the Professional Golfers' Association championship here today.

O'Hara gained a lead of 2 up on the out nine, and then putted sensationally to add another hole to his edge on the homeward journey.

Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, Pittsburgh, was all even with Abe Espinosa after 18 holes.

Gene Sarazen, who had a medal score of 71, was leading Al Espinosa, 3 up, at the finish of the morning round, and Billy Burke, national open titleholder, was 2 up on Dave Hackney. Horton Smith was 5 up on Walter Beamish and Jim Foulis was 1 up on Johnny Farrell as they went to lunch.

Tommy Armour and Joe Kirkwood were all even.

HOPE REVIVED FOR FLIERS

BULLETIN.

KEENE, N. H., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A large airplane flying high and heading toward New York was seen over this city this afternoon. It appeared to have pontoons. Keene is not far from the Atlantic coast; a plane could have come in from the ocean unnoticed because of low clouds.

As the plane was flying at such a high altitude and high speed it was impossible to distinguish any markings on it.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The trans-Atlantic fliers are lost.

At dawn today the sky was blackened by planes and the waters dotted with craft of every size everywhere along the 900 miles from here to Halifax searching for the D-2027 Junkers monoplane, which was last seen 395 miles east of Halifax at 2:40 yesterday afternoon.

The search took to the sea and Violence Marks Voting; Politician Kidnaped; Troopers Patrol District

Guns barked in Allegheny County's seething and sizzling battle of ballots today as 40 state police from Greensburg and the Washington sub-station patrolled "bad districts" to prevent disorder and to break up hoodlum electioneering following the most violent campaign in history. Highlights of the disorders were:

1—Bench warrants for arrests of members of three election boards in Homestead and McKees Rocks issued by Judges Frank P. Patterson and Elder W. Marshall.

2—State police ordered to patrol Homestead by Maj. Adams at Harrisburg, following plea of Chief Deputy Sheriff that "conditions are entirely out of control." Additional troopers sent to Pittsburgh from Greensburg.

3—Reports of trouble in McKees Rocks, Clairton and Duquesne received at state police headquarters here.

4—Five Negroes and one white man arrested during free-for-all fight at Letsche School. State police quell disorder.

FORBES FIELD, Sept. 15.—Despite his badly mangled toe, Capt. Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, was at his post this afternoon as the Buccos and Robins clashed in the first game of their double-header.

It might have been better had Pie laid off a day or two, but apparently he wanted to finish the year without missing a game. He has been in every game so far since the season started, not to mention almost 50 extra battles of the spring time and barnstorming periods.

M'KEESPORT CALLS FOR BALLOTS

BULLETIN.

That voting machines failed to work not because of any accident, but because of deliberate attempts to prevent them from functioning, was charged this afternoon by Attorney H. D. Hirsh, representing the Poole Engineering Company, manufacturers of the devices. Hirsh said he learned that 19 machines not operating in the Fourth Ward showed handles had been so filed that when pulled they snapped off.

Failure of voting machines to work in McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton today resulted in paper ballots being sent to the three third-class cities, on an order of the County Commissioners.

Complaint was made to Gilbert C. Cloonan by Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, representing State Senator William D. Mansfield, that devices in 31 out of 32 McKeesport wards were out of order, and that similar conditions existed in the other two third-class cities.

Cloonan, as soon as he was ordered to replace the machines by paper ballots, sent them, with ballot boxes, to the three cities by emergency crews.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Shortly after the polls opened, hundreds of complaints poured in from various city districts in which the machines had been placed, that the devices were not working and that the polls were in a state of confusion as a result.

Cloonan, before leaving for McKeesport, said 60 mechanics were servicing the devices. Nothing of importance was found to be wrong with the machines, according to Cloonan, who blamed most of the difficulty upon inexperienced election board officials.

With the substitution of paper ballots for the machines in the third-class cities, Cloonan said that machines stationed there would be brought into the city, and that it would be possible to station repairmen in each of the city districts using the machines so any trouble that developed could be remedied at once.

During the afternoon very few complaints were received, and Cloonan said his repairmen reported that they were running smoothly and without interruption. The repairmen were kept in each of the city districts and because of this it was possible to

DREW MANOR AGAIN FIRED

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 15.—(INS.)—Fire broke out in the summer home here of Judge James B. Drew, of Pittsburgh, early today for the second time within two weeks, and forced two members of his family and three employes to flee in night clothing. Both blazes are believed to have been incendiary.

Judge Drew, a candidate for the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the primary today, and Mrs. Drew are in Pittsburgh, where they are awaiting election returns.

COURT RULE HELD BLOW TO COYNE

Individual Appeals Indicate Only Few Hundred Can Be Reinstated in Time

BULLETIN.

The entire Registration Commission and Edward J. Sullivan, candidate for constable in the Twenty-fifth Ward, have been named in informations sworn by Mrs. Mary F. Green, 221 Jacksonia street, North Side, before Alderman A. W. Headley, charging conspiracy to violate the election laws. Sullivan, a candidate against Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad, was arrested.

The Kline-Coyne forces were dealt a severe blow this afternoon as Judge James R. Macfarlane ruled that individual hearings would be granted persons whose names were among the 7,481 stricken off by the Registration Board.

Immediately after word of the court's decision became known citizens of the Fourth Ward, where Coyne resides, whose names had been stricken off the registry lists, were reported voting on tax receipts and affidavits as to residence made at an Oakland real estate company's office.

JUDGES CONFER

Judge Macfarlane and three other judges conducted the hearings in four courtrooms, but, as testimony was to be taken in each case, it was estimated that not more than a few hundred of the disfranchised citizens could be restored to the lists before the polls closed at 8 p. m.

Many of those whose names were canceled from the registration books were said by political leaders to be supporters of Coyne.

Judge Macfarlane last night and today had refused to grant motions for a blanket restoration of the nullified names. This afternoon, following a conference with Judges Joseph M. Swearingen, George V. Moore and Frank P. Patterson, he announced:

"We have been talking this over. All we can do is to hear these individual cases. So we will separate and act on such cases as where people have paid property taxes and their names have been stricken off."

CLAMOR FOR BALLOT

Several hundred disfranchised voters who had been barred from the court room during arguments of counsel, were on hand to press claims to be reinstated.

In the County Commissioners' office Assistant County Solicitor B. B. McGinnis had prepared hundreds of mimeographed copies of court orders in anticipation of names being restored to the vote lists that there might be no de-

ONE OF 8,000 NAMES STRICKEN FROM VOTING LISTS FOR ILLEGAL REGISTRATION . . . WORK OF REGISTRATION COMMISSION

That black line through his name on the records is the reason that Fred Holmes, Negro, was barred today from sitting as minority inspector in the Third District, Sixth Ward, bitterly contested. He couldn't sit and he couldn't even cast his own vote!

ELECTION FLASHES

Allegheny County's most turbulent election campaign came to a climax today with these sidelights:

INSERT NEW LEAD

When Fred Holmes, Negro, acting as minority inspector on the Election Board in the Third District of the Sixth Ward, reported for work this morning he found that his name was among the 8,000 stricken from the voting lists for illegal registration. This made him ineligible for the Election Board and he was replaced by Mrs. Alice Disme, Negro.

The Third District of the Sixth Ward is in that section of the "Strip" where a bitter intra-party warfare is being waged by Congressman P. J. Sullivan and State Senator James J. Coyne, County Commissioner candidate.

Charged with fighting in front of Fire Engine Company No. 17, Virginia avenue and Shiloh street, the polling place of the Eighth District of the Nineteenth Ward, Leo Petrone, 23, of 8 Wyoming street, and Joseph Palmer, 21, of 111 Virginia avenue, were arrested

PILOT KILLED AS STORM WRECKS PASSENGER PLANE

PITTSBURGHER FORCED DOWN IN MIDWEST

Six Other Ships Meet Mishaps Near Chicago As Gale Sweeps District

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A solitary pilot, pushing his six passenger transport airplane through a heavy thunderstorm, fell to the desolate Swamps in the Lake Calumet district, southeast of here, last night and was fatally injured.

The flier, Albert Malvick, of Chicago, an experienced airman, lay amid the wreckage four hours before he was found. His neck was broken. He died on the way to the hospital.

SEARCH IS MADE

A check of the airport revealed Malvick's plane, bound to Chicago from Detroit, was undercounted for. A widespread search was started through the swamplands, assisted by half a dozen planes which dropped flares and swept the wastes with searchlights.

Malvick had been flying for seven years, his wife said, and made a record flight for passenger planes of 80 minutes between Detroit and Chicago, September 8. He had never before had a "crack-up" or been injured, she said.

PITTSBURGH SHIP DOWN

Seven other planes, caught in the same storm, were forced down at points near Chicago. All were en route here.

The Continental Airlines trimotored all-metal plane from Pittsburgh fought its way back as far as Lansing, then was forced back to Laporte, Ind., before it landed.

The National Air Transport trimotored plane from New York, with nine passengers and two pilots, was forced down at Lansing.

The Cincinnati-to-Chicago plane of the Embrey-Riddle Airlines, with two passengers and a pilot, was forced down at South Bend, Ind. The St. Louis plane of the same line was forced down at Bloomington, Ill., with four passengers.

Three Century airplanes from Detroit, Cleveland and Toledo were forced down at South Bend.

ing at those to whom he was introduced. It was his day of silence.

Speaking about India, he has said:

"I, personally, would wait, if need be, for ages rather than seek to attain the freedom of my country through bloody means."

He would rather never have liberty than fight for it. In that case he will wait "for ages" and he won't get it.

IN FIVE THOUSAND years of Indian literature the word "liberty" does not occur.

The world likes Gandhi so honest and sincere, frankly deploring the fact that the Hindu and Mohammedan millions murder each other because of religious hatred, and the other shameful fact that proud upper "caste" Hindus look with horror on millions of their own fellow creatures called "untouchables."

Gandhi expresses his horror of intoxicating drink and would like prohibition for India. How does he explain the fact that a handful of alcohol-drinking Englishmen rule India from thousands of miles away?

POOR GANDHI refers to "the glory of India's ancient past."

What glory? Who are the Indians great in history, excepting one ruler and Gautama, founder of a noble religion soon made vile by those upon whom he bestowed it?

India possesses one-fifth of the human race in a sizable land. But would Gandhi, if he could, inflict self-government on those 300,000,000? If they should obtain the liberty that they have not had in 5,000 years, would they not return to the horrors of child marriage and burning alive of widows?

keep the machines in operation, Cloonan declared.

Shortly after the paper ballots were sent to McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, Cloonan said he was informed by his repairmen that machines in the latter two cities were again in use. Cloonan said most of the difficulty with the machines developed during the early hours of voting and that at noon practically every device was back in good working condition.

Cloonan said an inspection of the 168 machine in use requested by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and made before the polls were opened, revealed that the devices were in perfect working order.

FOURTH WARD COMPLAINT

Registered voters in the Fifth District of the Fourth Ward complained that neither of the two machines in that district could be used. It was impossible to get electric current into the devices, according to the complaint. Throughout the morning between 40 and 60 voters milled around the polling place, it was said.

In the Seventh District of the Fourth Ward, complaints were that the machines were in use only for three-quarters of an hour, after which both failed to work. Confusion was rampant as voters yelled for mechanics and for paper ballots.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Similar complaints were also received from the Fifteenth District of the Third Ward. Before 11 o'clock so many complaints were being received at the bureau that all of the eight clerks were kept so busy that no system of keeping track of the complaints or of the whereabouts of the mechanics could be established, Cloonan said.

In McKeesport conditions were said to be even worse than in the city. Of the 66 machines placed in the home city of State Senator William D. Mansfield none worked when the polls were opened, it was said.

Soon after the polls opened additional complaints that the machines were out of order came in from Clairton and Duquesne, where the ratio vote was heaviest.

Additional crowds unable to vote in the city were reported at the voting places at McKee and Louisa streets and on Forbes street near Carnegie Library, from which the first complaint that the machines were not working was received.

air at midnight yesterday when the plane, christened Esa, after the girl who is sister of one of the fliers and wife of another, on the eve of her take-off from Lisbon, failed to materialize from the darkness. At 5 o'clock this morning it became frantic because it was known that at 5 o'clock the 635 gallons of fuel she carried was exhausted.

It is hoped the plane may be wallowing in the ocean or grounded on one of the barren islands that jut out of the sea north and eastward of Halifax.

Where are Willy Rody the German, Christian Johannsen, the Viking, and Fernando de Costa Viega, the flying hidalgo? Are they dead? The Esa was only sighted once after she left the Azores Sunday. That was by the steamship Pentland, 395 miles east of Halifax and 80 miles southwest of Cape Race. She was conquering the adverse winds and was flying at such high speed it was predicted the fliers would set their plane down in New York shortly after midnight.

At midnight the Esa had not appeared and beacon lights and other lights stabbed the darkness all along the coast and from Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn, Roosevelt Field, L. I., Glen H. Curtiss Airport, North Beach, Queens; Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, L. I.

Shamokin's Voting Machines Collapse

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—An order for the printing of 6,000 paper ballots for use in Shamokin was hurriedly given today by county officials as reports from 13 precincts said trouble was being experienced with voting machines.

BLAST DAMAGES MONESSEN

MONESSEN, Pa., Sept. 15.—Windows were shattered and buildings damaged for a block in Monessen's business district today as an explosion of a gasoline storage tank at Keiffer's garage rocked the entire community.

The blast occurred as gasoline was being run from an automobile tank car into one of a series of underground storage tanks. Several pedestrians and the driver of the tank car were shaken up.

Windows were broken and plaster ripped loose in the three-story brick building occupied on the first floor by the Peoples National Bank, with Bell Telephone Exchange offices above. The homes of Dr. David Lebowitz and W. O. H. Todd were damaged.

Postmaster Harry J. Bier had just left the entrance of a nearby building when the doorway was partly wrecked by the blast. Firemen used chemicals to prevent other storage tanks from igniting.

TRIANGLE SEEN IN DROWNING OF WIFE

'Other Woman' Sought as Professor, Kane Doctor's Son, Faces Murder Charge

International News Service.

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 15.—The specter of a domestic triangle insinuated itself today into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane, whose husband, Elisha Kent Kane, a professor of languages at the University of Tennessee, is being held in jail here charged with murder in connection with her drowning off a lonely shore in Chesapeake Bay Friday.

Suspicion that there is another woman in the case has spurred authorities to search for a letter which they indicate might provide a motive for the alleged crime. Other than admitting that the letter is from "another woman," officials are uncommunicative on the subject. They admit they know the contents, but will not disclose them. All information in the case is being carefully guarded.

Developments in a lengthy inquest last night were kept secret and witnesses were warned from discussing the case.

Meanwhile Prof. Kane is being held incommunicado in jail here. His father, Dr. Even O'Neill Kane, of Kane, Pa., arrived this morning, but refused to talk about the case.

Dr. Kane won notoriety when he performed an operation on himself for appendicitis, with the aid of mirrors.

The Coroner's inquest will be resumed late this afternoon, with Percy Carmel, a local lawyer, present as attorney for the accused husband.

election of State Senator James J. Coyne culminated early today. McGuire charged when the deputies came to Homestead and proceeded to terrorize voters.

The trouble started when two election officers, Joe Frank and Mike Gress, were arrested early today by deputies on a charge of violating the election laws. The deputies accused the men of having permitted the polling places to open 20 minutes before the legal hour. In retaliation, the deputies charged, police arrested their detail and held them in the Homestead jail on charges of being suspicious persons.

HABEAS PROCEEDINGS

Chief Deputy Sheriff B. V. Coffey, who detailed the deputies to Homestead to preserve order, immediately started habeas corpus proceedings to effect their release.

The action was followed by an order from Judge James R. Macfarlane demanding the appearance of Homestead police officials, headed by the burgess, to appear before him to show "cause why the deputies should not be released."

McGuire also charged that deputy sheriffs had arrested Harry Munn, borough clerk, without cause, and Patrolman Albert Koser. Koser was charged with pointing firearms.

Details of state police are patrolling Homestead.

HOSPITAL FEVER SPREAD PROBED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15.—(INS.)—With the source of the typhoid epidemic that has stricken 125 patients at the Cleveland State Hospital for the Insane still a mystery, a sixth victim was claimed today as a huge corps of doctors and nurses began work to curb further spread of the disease.

The latest victim of the fever was a man. The death toll at noon today was three men and three women.

After an examination revealed that 125 of the patients were afflicted, at least 10 were regarded in a serious condition today.

While the epidemic raged unchecked at the institution, city health officials made it a point to announce that there is no epidemic outside the hospital.

I asked Mrs. Collings what college she attended. She told me she was a graduate of Smith College. I asked her if she had studied logic and she said yes. Then I asked, 'Do you think your story is logical?' She immediately replied, 'It is highly illogical.'

"Upon my inquiry if she didn't believe that her husband was alive she said she did but could give no definite reason for her belief. Another peculiar angle of the case is Mrs. Collings' story that she was taken in a canoe with two men, the canoe being loaded with blankets in the middle of the canoe. Anyone familiar with water experience knows that a canoe is the most treacherous of crafts and it hardly seems possible that what she claims took place in the canoe could have occurred without upsetting it. However, I have made arrangements to search the waters of the sound in the vicinity of where Mrs. Collings said that her husband was thrown overboard."

Blue said he had issued orders to have the waters in which the tragedy is presumed to have taken place dragged at once—in the effort to determine definitely if Collings' body is there.

Uniform Marijuana Law Is Suggested

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A uniform law to prohibit the growing of marijuana plants is being prepared for presentation to the different state legislatures, Commissioner Anslinger, of the Narcotic Bureau, in making known that the legislation was being drawn up, said the federal government under the Constitution could not dictate what could be grown within the individual states.

PAY CUT STIRS BRITISH NAVY UNREST

Atlantic Fleet Maneuvers Called Off as Battleship Crews Oppose Wage Slash

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Unrest in some sections of the navy personnel because of pay cuts recommended in the government economy program was reported in an Admiralty statement today.

As a consequence the Atlantic fleet exercises have been suspended and the ships recalled to port pending an investigation.

The admiralty statement said:

"The senior officer of the Atlantic fleet has reported that promulgation of raised rates of naval pay has led to unrest among a section of the lower ratings.

"In consequence of this he has deemed it desirable to suspend the program of exercises of the fleet and to recall the ships to harbor while investigations are made into representations of hardships, occasioned by certain of the cuts in pay in order that these may be reported for the consideration of the board of admiralty."

WOULD CUT ALL PAYS

The bulk of the Atlantic Fleet is at present lying off Invergorden in Cromarty Firth in Northeastern Scotland.

The pay of officers and enlisted men in the British Navy would be cut under Chancellor Snowden's new emergency budget along that of the army, the London police, London's school teachers, and all civil servants from the prime minister down through the House of Commons and all the government offices.

Dissatisfaction of the kind indicated by today's statement is rare. The most recent serious trouble with enlisted personnel occurred last January when 30 seamen aboard the Lucia, a submarine depot ship, were court martialled for mutiny. They had refused to work when their officers cancelled a week-end shore leave. Four men eventually were sentenced to brief periods of detntion, and three officers were retired on half pay.

MUTINY RECALLED

The senior officer of the fleet referred to in the official statement is Rear Adm. Wilfred Tomkinson.

The statement came as a great surprise to the public, which had not the faintest hint that any difficulty was impending over the cuts in pay proposed in the Snowden budget.

The Admiralty officials stood on the public announcement, declined to go into the situation further for the present and no further information was immediately available.

Among the ships at Invergordon are the Rodney, one of the largest battleships in the world, the big battle cruiser Hood, the battleships Valiant, Warspite and Malaya, the battle cruiser Renown, and the cruisers Dorsetshire, Norfolk and York.

Dog, Cat to Decide Fate Of Shipwreck Treasure

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Upon the lives of a cat and dog—the only living creatures aboard the wrecked Panama mail liner Colombia, which went on the reefs of Santa Marguerita Island in a storm last Saturday night—depends the legality of claims to gold bullion worth $850,000, reported held in the strong room of the liner.

Under Mexican law a ship is not formally abandoned until every living thing has been taken off. Capt. Theodore K. Oaks, the skipper, was reported to have left the cat and dog aboard to establish his company's claim to the wreckage, which lies off the coast of Lower California.

Meanwhile the salvage tug Peacock was speeding to the wreck to retrieve the bullion and other cargo. Force of the heavy seas was slowly breaking up the wreckage.

G. A. R. Vets Re-Live War Days in Encampment

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Shuffling of step, gray-haired and wrinkled old gentlemen with a reminiscent twinkle in their eyes regaled each other with tales of '61 here today.

Scarcely 2,000 of them, the remnants of the Grand Army of the Republic that was 400,000 strong, they clasped eagerly the gnarled hands of old comrades at their sixty-fifth encampment.

They sat in chairs along the sidewalk in front of encampment headquarters.

Or if they would cross the busy street to the courthouse opposite, Boy Scouts sprang to attention. A policeman's whistle shrilled, Traffic stopped. Proudly, slowly, they crossed.

NOTES REVEAL AGREEMENT TO END LIVES

Money Difficulties Blamed in Tragedy; Woman's Letter Disposes of Possessions

A Bellevue woman was dead today and her husband was in a critical condition in Suburban General Hospital from the effects of a drug swallowed, police said, in a suicide pact in their home last night. Financial difficulties and loneliness prompted their act.

The woman, Mrs. Edith Cuneo, 57, was found dead in bed beside her husband, Stephen Cuneo, 62, who, in a coma, was rushed to the hospital. The tragedy took place at the couple's home, 435 Hallett place, Bellevue. At the hospital Cuneo was said to be in a serious condition.

POSSESSIONS TAGGED

Notes left by the woman, and tagged household effects assigning each article to the person to whom it should go, indicated that the couple had planned the tragedy for weeks. It was discovered after a neighbor, Mrs. Amelia M. Wilhelm, of 433 Hallett place, became alarmed at the non-appearance of the couple, and notified police.

One of the letters left by Mrs. Cuneo was addressed to Mrs. Wilhelm, and designated furniture to go to members of the latter's family.

'NO CRIME—ONLY TIRED'

Another note left by the woman read:

"Have taken 13 five-grain poison tablets each, and hope this is sufficient. We have committed no crime. Only tired of it all."

Mrs. Cuneo's mother's wedding ring was found wrapped in another note which read:

"My mother's wedding ring. Sorry I didn't leave it on her finger. Put it under my head."

Mrs. Cuneo's message to Mrs. Wilhelm pictured in a pitiful way the lonely life of the childless couple. She said:

"I wonder if you would take my dining room table and chairs? I would like to think of a happy family being around it and they all are so happy when the girls are home."

'I ASK FORGIVENESS'

In the same letter she said:

"I am leaving instructions to Jim Anderson to pay all debts. I want to ask your forgiveness, but it's the only way out of paying debts, and I can't wait till I get with Mother."

Anderson's name appeared on all of the notes attached to the household goods. He is a funeral director in Beaver.

Numerous other letters and curious articles were found by police, including a tin box full of antique jewelry.

Friends of the couple said Cuneo was engaged in the wholesale produce business until about a year ago, when he was forced to retire when his business dwindled.

Full Independence for India Demanded by Gandhi At London Parley

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(INS.)—A categorical demand for complete independence for India in all branches of political and governmental affairs was voiced by Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, today at the round table conference.

The demand was made in such gentle, non-aggressive tones, accompanied by the most humble of mannerisms on the part of Gandhi, that had the inflexibility of his will and his power of the millions of Indians not been indisputably proven, it scarcely could have been called a demand.

HEARERS REALIZE POWER

But those gathered around the huge table in St. James' palace were under no illusion as to the strength of will and the power back of that high treble voice and the frail, brown, incongruous figure from whence it came. He said:

"I am here to put forth the claim on behalf of the Congress (the Indian Nationalist Congress) in the gentlest but also the firmest manner possible, and to prosecute that claim with all the strength and energy I can command.

"If you can convince me to the contrary, or show me that my claim is inimical to the interests of those dumb millions, I would personally revise it. I am open to conviction. But, even so, I would have to ask my principals' consent to revision before it could become an useful agent of the Congress."

Gandhi remained sitting while he spoke. Clad only in his customary loincloth, homespun blanket, sandals and white homespun socks, he held the center of attention through 30 minutes of quiet, unhurried statement.

CONTROL OF ARMY

Gandhi based his demand for independence upon the resolution of the Karachi congress, which he characterized as the oldest political body in India, representing all Indian interests, creeds and castes.

The independence which India requires, he said, must be "purna swaraj," meaning complete independence, including control of the army, foreign affairs, finances, taxation and economic policies.

He proposed the establishment of an impartial tribunal to scrutinize the financial transactions of the British government in India; also to examine and assess the obligations of India to England. He added:

"You will find that the congress contemplated a partnership between India and Britain. But the connection was to be such as should exist between two absolute peoples.

"Time was when I prided myself at being called a British subject. Now I would far rather be called a rebel than a subject. I aspired, and still aspire, to be a citizen, not in an empire, but in a commonwealth in partnership, if possible—if God wills it, an indissoluble partnership, but not a partnership superimposed upon one nation by another."

Gandhi warned that he felt free to withdraw from the conference at any time he felt his usefulness there had ended.

RULING TODAY ON POOR BOARD

Judge Thomas J. Baldrige, of Hollidaysburg, today was prepared to hand down a decision on the motion of the Poor Directors of Allegheny County, seeking a rule of supersedeas to stop a public investigation of their books. The board is composed of Mai. J. Clyde Miller, Dr. W. L. Henderson and H. H. Dixon.

The motion was made by the board after K. William Schuchman, of Dormont, candidate for poor director, succeeded in having a board of visitors appointed when he was refused information as to how the board had expended $1,000,000. The board of visitors was appointed by Judge James H. Gray.

AIMEE HAPPY; LONELINESS 'CURED'

Mrs. McPherson-Hutton Tells How Elopement Soothed Heart Pangs

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Between acts of a sacred opera entitled "The Iron Furnace," Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, 38-year-old Evangelist, last night related how love had come into her life.

Appearing in the center of the stage of Angelus Temple at the end of the first act, and just after her new husband, David Hutton, 30-year-old baritone choir singer, had been given an ovation as he retired after enacting the role of a pharaoh, the evangelist said:

"You have no idea how lonesome I have been. I have been alone all of my life but four years, my previous married life having constituted that length of time. But I'm through being lonesome now. I have seen young couples whom I have married at the temple as they kissed each other, and I've stood and wistfully watched.

"I used to watch Rolf (her son) and his bride and Roberta (her daughter) and her sweetheart as they came in from evening strolls, excitedly talking about the moon, and they would grab me and say, 'isn't the moon wonderful, mother?'

"I have been seeing myself home every night with a trip hammer beating in my throat."

Hutton and the evangelist went early Sunday by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., where they were married by Miss Harriet Jordan, dean of the Angelus Temple Bible School.

Explaining the elopement, Mrs. McPherson-Hutton said it was a desire to escape publicity that caused her to make the flight to the Arizona town. She did not mention the fact that a newspaper reporter was among the passengers in the airplane that carried her party to Yuma.

'FRUIT JUICES' UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Prohibition's perennial shadow crept toward the next Congress today as Senator Sheppard (Dem., Texas) said he would press legislation aimed at the sale of fruit juice concentrates, which turn readily into wine.

In addition, the co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment said he would urge a law making the liquor buyer equally guilty with the seller.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition enforcement, is the legal representative of a grape concentrate concern. She told the Wickersham Commission her company had authority under the law to distribute its product.

WHITE BATTLES SONG WRITER

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—George White, theatrical producer, and Lew Brown, one of his song writers, exchanged blows at the opening of White's Scandals last night as a climax to a legal dispute earlier in the day.

Crowds in the lobby of the Apollo Theater and a patrolman separated the pair. Their clothes were disheveled, but they appeared uninjured.

Brown and Ray Henderson, authors of the musical score of the "Scandals," unsuccessfully sought to enjoin White from using their music on the ground that he had refused to sign a written contract and had made changes in the score without their consent.

White denied he had made any changes without the full knowledge and consent of the composers. He said that due to the high cost of the show any interference with the opening would be a "terrific injury."

New Serum Supply May Save Mother

BUFFALO, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Enough cortin extract to continue treatment of Mrs. Andrew Nelson four or five days was shipped to Chicago last night from Buffalo. It is hoped to save her life. Dr. Frank A. Hartman, professor of physiology at the University of Buffalo and discoverer of the extract, made this statement today. Mrs. Nelson, mother of six children, is ill of Addison's disease.

STORM WRECKS TOWNS IN WEST MEXICO

Heavy Damage and Some Loss of Life in Lower California; Belize Digs Out

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Heavy property damage and some loss of life were reported today as the result of a hurricane which swept the southern half of the Lower California Peninsula Saturday and Sunday.

A message from Santa Rosalia said the major part of the town was wrecked when a wind of near-cyclonic velocity battered in its wooden houses and that a number of lives were lost in a tidal wave in the gale's wake.

The population of Santa Rosalia does not exceed 2,000, but there is a considerable population at El Boleo mine in the hills back of the town. Serious damage was reported at the mine, but details were lacking.

VESSELS OVERDUE

The exact number of victims in the hurricane's path is unknown here, for in view of the confusion no check has been attempted.

La Paz, capital of the southern district, reported serious property damage but no casualties. Several small vessels were overdue from Mazatlan and other ports, and it was feared they had foundered. One of them had a crew of seven aboard in addition to six prisoners and a military escort of seven.

Port authorities at Vera Cruz warned shipping that navigation was dangerous in the south and southeast of the Gulf of Mexico on account of the disturbance, which it was believed might sweep across the tip of the peninsula, cut over the gulf and penetrate islands along the Tehuantepec Isthmus.

BELIZE FEARS RIOTS

BELIZE, British Honduras, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Manifold fears of a food and water shortage, an outbreak of disease and riots by stricken natives today dominated Belize's efforts to repair the havoc of storm and flood.

Estimates of the dead still ranged between 500 and 1,000 with the probability that when outlying districts are heard from the mortality list will reach the latter figure. The wholesale burial and cremation of the victims made it likely that their exact numbers never will be known. Diddier Masson Pan-American field manager, said the food supply is running short, and the lack of drinking water is serious.

Rehabilitation measures are proceeding under the direction of British authorities and with the help of United States marines and sailors. The Salvation Army has taken over operation of soup kitchens to feed the hungry.

8—State police guard mass meeting in McKees Rocks as hoodlums terrorized citizens in widespread area, as bricks are hurled through many windows.

WARRANTS ISSUED

Reports to state police headquarters this afternoon were to the effect that disturbances had broken out in McKees Rocks, Duquesne and Clairton. Requests for details of state police were made to quell the disturbances.

These requests prompted the following statement from Lieut. Martin in charge of the detail here:

"We are doing everything humanly possible to prevent disorder with the force of men we have. We will not interfere with local authorities and will only go into districts where the situation is out of hand."

State police details have been instructed not to enter the polls and to keep the distance of 100 feet required by law.

Bench warrants for the members of three election boards in Homestead and in McKees Rocks were issued today by Judges Frank P. Patterson and Elder W. Marshall, charging violations of the election laws.

A warrant was issued for George Gulentz, inspector of the board of the Fourth District of the Third Ward, McKees Rocks, after it was charged he refused to swear overseers.

Warrants for the board of the First District of the Fourth Ward, Homestead, were issued after violations were charged. Warrants were also issued for the board of the Second Ward. Three other informations were withdrawn.

'STUFFING' CHARGED

Attorney Robert Arbaugh charged the Homestead polling places were opened before the regular time and that ballots were deposited at the polls in bulk.

Three disturbances were quelled by State Police at the Letsche school in the Ninth District of the Third Ward today when "free-for-all" fights broke out among voters awaiting in the long lines before the polling place. Five Negroes and one white man were arrested.

A few minutes later Rocco DePippo, better known as Rokie Long, was reported arrested by Center Avenue police when police say, he drew a revolver on another man at Letsche School. There was no record of his arrest at the station, however.

TROOPERS ON GUARD

For the first time in the history of Allegheny County, state police today established headquarters here and were patrolling the bad districts where election violence bids fair to surpass that of all other years.

The first detachment was ordered into McKees Rocks last night following an alleged attack on two workers of the recently organized Citizens Committee. Later additional detachments were ordered into Braddock, Homestead and other districts.

Official instructions to patrol the districts were given Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, late yesterday from the office of Gov. Pinchot in Harrisburg. They were believed to have been given by P. S. Stalnaker, for Gov. Pinchot's private secretary, acting for the Governor, who was absent from Harrisburg.

FIGHTS BEGIN EARLY

The bringing of troopers into the county followed votes at the polls in a precinct not more than a week ago when they were brought into the Hill and Hilltop districts on regulation days.

Independent Republican workers in Beaver were reported considering asking for troopers. Troopers were patrolling election districts in Fayette and Westmoreland counties.

Later Ralph Definbaugh, 43, of 23 Jacksonia street, a friend who believed he had been kidnaped by political foes.

Police records showed that a man giving his name as Definbaugh, of Bochi way, was held in North Side station on disorderly conduct charges. He was arrested at Federal and Henderson streets. Sullivan said he believed it was his friend.

CANDIDATE BEATEN

Paul Matsey, independent candidate for First Ward constable, was beaten and arrested by a group of men, it was reported, when he was visiting at the Sullivan home. He left the house on an errand and did not return. Sullivan said he, led by his brother, Assistant Chief of Police Michael Maisey. An automobile owned by Steve Jovanov, which was being used to advertise the independent meeting, was reported found in the curb at Helen and George streets and wrecked. Jovanov escaped as a crowd surrounded the machine.

The bitter fight over the constable candidacies of Schneider, incumbent, and Walsh in the First Ward was carried to Central Police Court where Schneider and his adherent, Jerome King, were to be arraigned on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws.

Schneider surrendered to detectives last night and was immediately released on a $5,000 bond.

SHOOTING AT POLLS

The shooting of Rosenberg occurred a few minutes before the polls in the Miller street school, the Sixth District of the Third Ward, opened. Rosenberg, police say, became involved in an argument with Green. During its height Green is alleged to have drawn a pistol and fired. The bullet struck Rosenberg in the right leg. He was taken to Passavant Hospital. A suspicious person charge was lodged against Green.

A long line of voters extending half a block from the basement of the school waiting for the polls to open were thrown into confusion by the shooting. The polls were opened after an hour's delay due to the fact that the voting check lists and election board sworn statements were missing.

TROOPERS AT SCENE

State police were rushed to the scene to prevent further disorder.

The entire Hill district is being patrolled by an augmented police force. Forty men were assigned to the district early today by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

Vote Officials Face Fines for Ballot Errors

Any judge or inspector of election who fails to require voters to tear off a perforated triangular strip on the right hand corner of the ballot, before depositing the ballot in the ballot box, is liable to a fine of $10 for each such ballot deposited, under a new election law.

The slip bears a number which must correspond to the number on the ballot book stub, to insure that a genuine ballot is cast. The slip is torn off to prevent members of the election board from checking on how the elector voted. If the slip is not removed, the ballot is voided.

Attorney Thomas F. Kilgallen presented a petition for restoration of the name of Sadie Kopp, 306 Coltart square, setting forth that she had paid Howard W. Neely 50 cents poll tax, had signed an order authorizing him to obtain a tax receipt for her and later had registered.

Judge Macfarlane ruled that under the facts stated she was entitled to reinstatement.

The court refused to entertain a motion by Kilgallen that a blanket order be made compelling the Registration Board to reinstate all names stricken off.

While Courthouse corridors were jammed with disfranchised voters seeking to be requalified to cast ballots, others were storming the polls in various districts, in an effort to vote.

TWO RULINGS MADE

Judge Macfarlane terminated last night's session abruptly after rulings were made in two types of cases.

These two rulings were:

1—Persons who signed a bona fide written authorization delegating another person to obtain his tax receipt, and paid to that agent the amount of tax, were entitled to register on such tax receipt.

2—Those persons who discovered they were not on the assessment lists and, to remedy this, had themselves assessed by affadavit in the County Treasurer's office prior to September 1, were entitled to register if their assessments were subsequently certified.

Turmoil Features Climax of Vote War

shortly before the polls opened this morning. Mt. Washington police said that the men belong to different political factions.

FACTIONS CUT FOES IN VOTE

As the voting proceeded, unusual factional agreements were developing. Coyne forces were reported to be supporting Maj. William T. Rees, Independent candidate for county controller, in some districts cutting Controller Robert G. Woodside.

Coyne-Armstrong friendships seemed to have ceased on nearly all fronts. In the Fourth Ward, home of the senator, many of his followers were voting for him alone. In the Seventeenth Ward, home of Armstrong, all Armstrong supporters were "plumping" for Armstrong, while the Coyne contingent was voting only for the senator.

Outside of the city, Armstrong had given orders to assist Senator William D. Mansfield in many sections. Other county districts developed the fact that the county organization was centering judicial support on the seven sitting judges.

Within the city the Kline organization was throwing all strength to City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, the Mayor's entry in the judicial fight.

Old Forge Man Shot In Election Dispute

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Patrick Giorando, an Old Forge policeman, was shot through the leg in an election dispute at Old Forge Borough, this morning. County authorities said the shooting was done by John Skutach, an Old Forge constable, after a heated exchange of words. Giorando was removed to Taylor Hospital.

Free Aid Offered Those Refused Right to Vote

Any bona fide voter refused the right to ballot today, may obtain free legal aid by telephoning Grant 2730 or calling at the headquarters of Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Common Pleas Judge, and Clarence B. Nixon, candidate for County Judge, on the second floor of the Law and Finance Building, 429 Fourth avenue.

An emergency committee of lawyers will be there from the time the polls open at 8 a. m. until they close at 8 p. m., daylight saving time. On the committee are Attorneys Robbin B. Wolf, Thomas N. Griggs, E. E. Arrowsmith, J. Garfield Houston, William H. Eckert, Joseph F. Weis, George D. Wick, David F. Weis, George D. Wick, David and David Olbum.

Anthony A. Donafrio, 41, of 412 Lincoln avenue, a half brother of Michael DeRosa, was arrested upon orders of Michael DeRosa, Jr., near the polls at 1013 Lincoln avenue as the DeRosa-Means alderman fight was being argued. Donafrio was charged with inciting to riot, and was released on $1,000 bond. It was said that Donafrio, a follower of Means, was arguing with Max Miller, Traffic Court clerk, and William Snowball, deputy sheriff. The release on bond was effected by a call from District Attorney A. T. Park.

Daniel Stausey, deputized before the election was arrested at the polls at Linden and River streets, Duquesne, after he was said to have fired several shots in the air. Stausey, a candidate for constable, said he was pushed about by a mob and fired to frighten the crowd.

The emergency committee of 25 lawyers offering free legal advice to voters had received approximately 400 requests for help before noon. The committee is sitting until 8 p. m.

Heavy early voting was reported throughout the North Boroughs district, many women being at the polls.

Raids and arrests by City Detectives Walter Monaghan and Thomes Morgan were blamed for seven men losing the right to vote at the primary. Adherents of Jack Schneider, running for constable in the First Ward, said the raids was a part of a campaign to cripple them in the fight against Paul Walsh, son of Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh. Nathan Barnett, 21, 410 McKee place, Fourth Ward, (Oakland) was held over by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, in Central Police Court, on a suspicious person charge. Detectives alleged he registered from 1628 Fifth avenue, Fourth District of the First Ward.

Thomas Oliver, 21, of 135 Elm street, arrested by Monaghan and Morgan on a suspicious person charge, was accused of having registered from 66 Van Braam street, Fourth District of the First Ward. He was held over.

Peter Bauers, 23, of 1522½ Penn avenue, was arrested by the detectives, accused of having registered from 3 Cherry way, First District of the First Ward. After his arrest the detectives went to 3 Cherry way and found a rooming house where they arrested Albert Karaich, proprietor, and confiscated a five-gallon can of moonshine, they said. One visitor was arrested.

John Barks, 39, proprietor of a confectionery store at 1313 Clark street, and Paul Beirman, 24, same address, were arrested Monday by the detectives, who say they found 30 gallons of moonshine in the store. They were admitted to bail and early this morning were again arrested. Detectives Monaghan and Morgan saying they found 24 bottles of moonshine. Eighteen visitors were arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Assertion that 88 per cent of the approximately 1,400 persons arrested for crimes during the first six months of this year in Philadelphia, were tried within four weeks of their arrest, was made in a report issued by the Philadelphia Criminal Justice Association, which commended the speedy procedure. Its president, George Norris, said:

"Philadelphia is no longer the happy hunting grounds for the burglars, the holdupmen and the thieves."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—(AP)—C. T. Ludington, president of the Ludington flying service and operator of the Central Airport at Camden, N. J., offered his resignation as head of the aviation committee of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. He said a recent controversy between the airport officials and government Postoffice Department heads had influenced him to resign.

Vote Machine Operation By Official Protested

Following complaints that a member of the Election Board in Old City Hall, Smithfield street, the First District of the Second Ward, was in the booth of the voting machine ringing up the votes for electors, members of the board said the action was due to requests by the elector.

Joseph Sweeney, chairman of the board, said:

The judge of election was asked to help voters to work the machines because they are unfamiliar with them and cannot use them. It seems all right to me to give them help."

The complaints made were not formal.

M'GOVERN ASKS VOTES IN FIGHT ON PLUNDER

Urges Citizens Again Take Reins of Government in Final Campaign Talk

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, candidate for re-election on the independent Republican ticket, closed his and the independents' campaign last night with a summation of his campaign over Radio Station WJAS. He reiterated a number of charges he has made during and preceding the campaign, emphasizing that none of them had been denied by the organizations.

He also revealed that he had "turned down" two proffers of aid which would have made his election much easier. One, he said, came from emissaries of the organization, who told him that if he would stay out of the primaries the weight and power of the Republican organization would be thrown back of his candidacy, thus assuring him of re-election as minority Commissioner. But, he said, he felt his fate as a Commissioner was of little consequence unless the principles for which he stood were sustained through an overturn of the existing regime in the County Commissioners' office.

REFUSED GANG AID

Also, he said, he could have benefited through an alliance with a candidate who had unlimited backing of a millionaire patron, if he would agree to run alone without a full ticket. But he refused this proposition, too, he said because he felt it would not be fair or just to William T. Rees, running for County Controller, Ralph H. Smith, for District Attorney, James O. Corbett, for Recorder of Deeds, Henry Tranter, for County Treasurer, and the four men on the Independent Republicans' councilmanic slate in Pittsburgh — Robert Garland, Charles Anderson, P. J. McArdle and John D. Houston. He added:

"In a word, my own political fortunes mean but little unless the independent Republican movement as a whole succeeds in tomorrow's primaries.

"Tomorrow the voters of this great community will decide whether they will take back the government of their county or whether they will continue, as they have for nearly 20 years, to permit a group of conscienceless plunderers and wasters to forcibly and fraudulently seize the powers of government to exploit the county and its citizens for their own profit and for their own power.

"THEFT OF MILLIONS"

"For six weeks you have heard the issues of this campaign discussed. You have heard reputable, responsible men and women prove the theft of millions of dollars from public funds and the waste of millions more. You have had laid before you facts to prove that many of our great public construction projects are lamentable bungles and botches.

"You have had timely and startling evidence in the past week of the methods by which this group of professional plunderers keeps its members in power—by the fouling of the franchise so that the will of the people as expressed at the polls becomes a mere jest."

"And if you will look back over this campaign you will perhaps be astonished to recall that not once have any of these charges been denied.

"The case of the commonwealth is in. You have heard the evidence in the case of the people of Allegheny County against Joseph G. Armstrong and his pals. You are the judge and jury. You will render your verdict tomorrow at the polls."

DISCUSSES ISSUE

McGovern discussed the political philosophies involved. On one hand the independent Republicans, believing not only in the rights but the capacity of the ordinary voter to organize and administer his own government and on the other, Armstrong, representing those who hold the people should be ruled by those who know best, who should be adequately rewarded from public funds for their trouble.

McGovern added:

"I can appreciate Armstrong's viewpoint, but I cannot approve it and I cannot sympathize with it. I want to pick my public officials myself, so far as my vote will do it. I want to vote for whom I please and I want that vote counted.

"The independent Republican movement does not have the finances of the city and county payrollers that the machines have to aid it. With limited resources, it has carried on an aggressive campaign for decency, economy and independence in our city and county government.

"For this reason, I ask every man and woman in Allegheny County to vote for the entire independent Republican ticket."

COYNE VISIONS POLL VICTORY

State Senator James J. Coyne, candidate for County Commissioner, and his campaign manager, Councilman M. J. Muldowney, issued statements last night expressing confidence that Coyne would be nominated. Coyne declared:

"I have thoroughly enjoyed the campaign and I expect to enjoy the results just as much. This is my first campaign as a candidate for a county office. I never thought I would have the opportunity of meeting so many fine men and women as there are in Allegheny County.

"Their support, I am confident, means my nomination. I hope that all of us associated in the recent weeks will be able to get together many times in the future."

Muldowney stated:

"I feel confident that tomorrow night will confirm my opinion that Senator Coyne has by his able talks and understanding of the majority of the people, convinced them of his ability to function in the office which he seeks."

Poll Wears Crepe, Death Failing to Cause Change

MEDIA, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP)—There was black crepe on the door of a primary voting place here today.

Daniel Healy died at the home of his niece, Miss Grace Canessa, used as a polling place. The body lay in state in the front room while voting machines were operated on the porch.

The court ruled the election law did not permit a polling place to be changed without long notice for any reason except destruction of the building by fire.

Special Constables Named for 6th Ward

Eleven special deputy constables, to serve only during the election today in the Sixth Ward, were appointed just before Quarter Sessions Court adjourned, late yesterday, by Judge James H. Gray, on petition of Constable Luke Hanna, who said they would be needed to preserve order.

SEE ARMSTRONG 'LANDSLIDE'

Congressman Harry A. Estep, manager of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong's campaign to succeed himself, in a broadcast last night over KDKA predicted Armstrong's election by "an exceptional majority." He declared:

"Commissioner Armstrong has conducted a clean, constructive campaign. We have not sought support by arguing the weakness or lack of experience of other candidates, but have stood on Armstrong's record in public life as a builder and a doer. On that platform we expect to win by an exceptional majority. We have confidence in the people's judgment."

Balk Plot to Kill 3 Prison Guards

LANSING, Kan., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A plot by nine convicts to kill three guards and three trusties and escape from the Kansas Penitentiary in Warden Kirk Prather's automobile early today was frustrated by seizure of a cache of firearms and the rounding up of the plotters on the eve of the attempted break last night.

M'NAIR SPURS DEMOCRATS

Attorney William N. McNair, chairman of the committee supporting the candidacies of David L. Lawrence and Jury Commissioner Thomas A. Dougherty, for the Democratic nominations for County Commissioner, today issued a statement urging party members to participate in the primary election. He declared:

"The fact that there are but few contests for the Democratic nominations should not deter any Democrat from voting. We believe that the best interests of the party will be served by the nomination of David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, and his running mate, Thomas A. Dougherty, for the two Democratic nominations for commissioners.

"We also urge Democrats in every election district in the county to see that militant Democrats are nominated for judges and inspectors of elections. It is important that the Democratic party has representation on every election board in the county."

Praise for Record Gratifies Haggerty

Attorney John F. Haggerty, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, closed his campaign last night with a broadcast over WCAE. He said:

"It is a matter of gratification to me that my public work as prosecuting attorney has gained some measure of praise for my independence and fearlessness in battling the elements of lawlessness and disorder.

"It is upon my record and the reputation that I have gained in conducting my public responsibility that I stand in seeking your votes for Judge of Common Pleas Court."

27 WENDEL KIN IN WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP)—One man from Minneapolis and 26 people from Maryland and Virginia may share in the estate, estimated as high as $100,000,000, left by Ella Wendel, last of two sisters who lived a recluse life in the mansion at Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

From hundreds of claimants, some of whose claims have been proved fraudulent, Arthur Garfield Hays, chief of counsel for the Wendel kin who hope to break the will, has selected 27 people as having proper claim to kinship. The legal fight will be begun as soon as the temporary administrators present the will for probate.

The Minneapolis man is Niels Jacobson Wendel, 76, retired mail carrier. All the claimants are elderly and none wealthy. Miss Wendel's grandmother, who was Henrietta Stansbury, furnishes the point of contact between the Maryland and Virginia kinfolk and the Wendel fortune which, unless the will should be broken, goes principally to two divinity schools, two hospitals and an orphanage.

Pal of Pittsburgher Executed in Slaying

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Paul V. Hurley, 20, was electrocuted at the Charlestown State Prison early today for the murder of a policeman. He was the second youngest person ever to be electrocuted in Massachusetts.

Hurley shot and killed Patrolman Joseph O'Brien when the officer attempted to search two youths. Hurley was arrested in Baltimore several months later. His companion, Thomas Healey, of Pittsburgh, was released after giving state's evidence.

SCOPES VISITS DEATH MYSTERY TRIAL SCENE | WOMAN DIES

DAYTON, Tenn., Sept. 15 (AP).—John Thomas Scopes, former Dayton school teacher whose trial for violating Tennessee's anti-evolution law attracted nationwide attention to this town in 1925, came here today for his first visit in six years.

For some time he has been employed by the State Bureau of Mines in New Mexico.

He watched the session's evolution at the trial today, but spent his time renewing old friendships.

Among other changes he saw in the town was the Bryan Memorial University, built as a memorial to William Jennings Bryan, who aided in prosecuting the young professor and died here a few days after Scopes was convicted and fined.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Sarah J. Tabor, 86, central figure in one of Michigan's most sensational murder mysteries of a decade and a half ago, died at the home of her son, Walter, at Gobleville, Lake today.

Mrs. Tabor, widow of a prominent Van Buren County attorney, was accused of manslaughter in connection with the death of her daughter, Maud Tabor Virgo, a school teacher, who disappeared in Paxton in 1916. The daughter's body was found in November, 1919, under a pile of shingles in the home.

At Mrs. Tabor's first trial the jury disagreed. No second hearing of the case was ever held. A second daughter of Mrs. Tabor ended her life at a lake resort several months ago.

New Castle Home Inmate Hangs Self

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 15 (AP).—Using an apron and a stocking as a rope, Mrs. Marie Schaffert, 44, hanged herself today from a steam pipe in the basement of the Lawrence County Home. Inmates of the institution found her limp body hanging from the pipe this morning. They summoned Coroner J. P. Caldwell, who pronounced the death a case of suicide.

JUVENILE HOME HEAD SCORES ARMSTRONG

Official Boosts Building For Appointments' Sake Board Chairman Charges

W. H. MacAfee, chairman of the board of managers of the Juvenile Detention Home, charged today that County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong is in sympathy with the erection of a new detention home only because he wants politics to re-enter into staff appointments at the institution.

Armstrong declared Saturday he fostered and supported a bill that would have made the new home possible at the last session of the Legislature but that "some members of the home's board had influence enough with the Governor to have it vetoed."

McAfee charged that in supporting the bill Armstrong violated a "gentlemen's agreement" previously made in which he promised to secure legislation which would not only make the building possible but which would not disturb the powers and source of the board of managers' authority under an earlier act.

The bill advocated by Armstrong MacAfee said provided for the new building but also would have given the County Commissioners power to make the staff appointments.

In conclusion, McAfee said:

"Badly as the new home is needed and disgraceful to the county as the present dilapidated buildings are, the Board of Managers has realized from the beginning that of the two, staff and buildings, the staff is incomparably more important and that it would be a very serious blunder to sacrifice staff standards and staff morale in order to secure a modern plant.

"Had Mr. Armstrong been satisfied to keep his hands off the management of the home and to seek legislation merely to give the Commissioners unquestioned authority to build the new institution, he would have received the unqualified support of the Board of Managers in his endeavors. What he did was to attempt to wreck a very fine act (that of 1901) for political purposes only."

RULES ON BOY MINERS GIVEN

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The Department of Labor and Industry and the Department of Mines are conducting a joint study of employment of minors under 18 years of age in mining operations.

In an opinion from the Attorney General's department for Dr. A. M. Northrup, Secretary of Labor and Industry, it was ruled boys 16 and 17 years of age could legally be employed to mine or load coal in a bituminous mine only if the work were done in company with an experienced person over 18 years of age. Dr. Northrup said:

"The double compensation amendment to the workmen's compensation act does not change in the least the provisions of the child labor law regarding the employment of minors. The compensation status of a minor under 18 years is changed only if he is injured while employed in violation of a state law affecting the employment of minors. We believe the proposed study of employment of boys in coal mines will result in increased protection for both the employe and employer."

DOCTORS LAUD COMICS AS AID TO HEALTH

Hearst Papers Given Praise For Bringing More Laughs Through Larger Sections

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Take it from Logan Clendening, Royal S. Copeland, F. W. Seward and other distinguished physicians and neurologists, what the nation needs to kill the depression is—more newspaper comics.

They are authorities for the statement that the newspaper comics play an important part in the nation's health.

Dr. Copeland said today:

"The value of a smile in combatting economic depression is as great as it is in disposing of mental depression. Every day, and particularly Sunday, millions everywhere 'slip the belt off their mental machine,' as Arthur Brisbane expressed it, as they give way to the mirth of comic strips and colored funnies."

Dr. Copeland

Dr. Copeland's observation was occasioned by announcement that beginning September 20 colored comic sections of the Hearst newspapers will be increased in size. Every Hearst Sunday newspaper will publish 16 pages of comics, containing 32 comics in all in four colors.

In America, particularly, where life is geared high people need the relaxation of laughter, says Dr. Clendening, author of "The Human Body" and Dr. Seward of the Neurological Institute at Goshen, N. Y. They agree that a sense of humor properly exercised is the best tonic in the world for frayed nerves.

Dr. Clendening

"They say:

"There is almost no home or business pressure from which the comics do not offer an escape vicariously. Hen-pecked husbands can roar over 'Jiggs,' and their wives can enjoy 'Maggie' without once identifying themselves with the characters."

Executives who must struggle eight and nine hours a day in an atmosphere of tense big-business competition find in comics like "Tillie the Toiler" and in "Dave's Delicatessen" hilarious relief from the cares of the office day. They laugh at the bugaboos which oppress them and the physicians explain that bugaboos laughed at vanish.

Psychological studies of the effect of comics upon people in increasing the individual's efficiency have been carried to new heights of thoroughness in recent months. From numerous studies it has been demonstrated that the comics, particularly the generous Sunday ones in color, are a thorough-going mental rest and refreshment, more efficacious in many cases than medications put up in bottles.

The range of the comic offerings now appearing in newspapers makes them particularly valuable for people suffering from strain and worry, as well as for those in a healthy mental state who want to avoid strain and worry. There is a proper dose for every case.

SERVES AS MEDICINE

It is even possible to list the various complexes examined nowadays with such scholarly interest and mention the proper comic to be taken as a sugar-coated pill for each one, the psychologists declare.

Increasing the size of the comic supplement in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph beginning next Sunday will enable a wide range of interests and therefore "complexes" to be covered.

Famous funmakers who will be represented with comics in the enlarged comic section papers are George McManus, Russ Westover, Rube Goldberg, Milt Gross, Lyman Young, Chic Young, Grace Drayton, Percy Crosby, Pat Sullivan, H. H. Knerr, Jimmy Murphy, E. C. Segar, Fred Opper, Billy DeBeck, Cliff Sterrett and Jimmy Swinnerton. The new Sun-Telegraph comic section will consist of 16 pages, including 32 comics, all in four colors.

YOU GET IT FIRST IN A STUDEBAKER

Many of the improvements you find in other cars were pioneered by Studebaker. Year after year Studebaker sets the pace and the industry sets its course thereby!

You couldn't get a low-priced quality Eight till Studebaker initiated large scale production.

Ball-bearing spring shackles, hydrostatic gasoline gauge, mineral wool muffler and carburetor silencer are today the adopted children of an industry, but they were born and christened in the Studebaker plant!

Why get these improvements second-hand? . . . why not get a Free Wheeling Studebaker?

SEEKS EX-WIFE OR DEATH

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Katherine Carqueville Stevens Lechere found himself faced today by a tangled romance which having once narrowly avoided tragedy, was still fluted with dramatic overtones.

For her divorced husband, George M. Stevens, Jr., who tried last Friday to take his life was quoted as saying he would seek death again unless she returned to him. The threat was attributed to him by Mrs. Alexander Carqueville, mother of the former wife.

The situation was all the more complicated because both have remarried. Mrs. Stevens heiress to the Thomas Jeffery automobile fortune interrupted her honeymoon with Robert Lee Lechere at Buffalo to hurry to Stevens' bedside when she heard he had attempted suicide. And Stevens himself is married to another woman of whom little is known excepting that she is 32 and comes from Kansas City.

Bairnsfather Peace Balks Pair's Divorce

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Bruce Bairnsfather, English cartoonist and his wife, Cecil, have made up. The reconciliation occurred [illegible] Supreme Court Justice Glennon was about to sign the interlocutory decree granting Mrs. Bairnsfather a divorce. In her suit, named Courtenay Collier, Englishman.

Lindsey Recovering After Operations

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Ben B. Lindsey, former judge of the Juvenile Court of Denver now a practicing attorney here, has virtually recovered from two recent major operations, Lucile Anderson, his nurse at a hospital said he is able to walk about and probably will leave the hospital in a few days.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Gift to the Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know whether it is necessary or just proper to present a gift and just what kind of gift on a woman who had invited the writer, a friend of this woman's daughter, to dinner. I have gone out several times with this girl and have had dinner a few nights ago in this girl's home at her mother's request.

As I will again be going to her home in a day or two, I am very anxious to know just what is right and proper. A. B. C.

It is not necessary or required that you take a gift to this generous hostess who has entertained you so delightfully in her home. But since she has been so gracious in her hospitality and friendliness, I think that you would enjoy sending her a box of flowers or candy occasionally. If you prefer, you could bring some flowers when you go to dinner on the next occasion. It would be especially gracious for you to have the florist make a corsage for her to wear or if you prefer, send some flowers to the table. Then too probably some time at dinner you will talk about books or music or music records, then for you to send a book that has been discussed or a piece of music or a phonograph record would be kind and thoughtful.

There are many such gestures that a young man can make to his hostess that are very polite and charming and hostesses appreciate this. And these thoughts indicate that the discerning host has a sense of appreciation of hospitality.

A Baby Carriage Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There has been a disagreement among my friends about wheeling a baby carriage. Some say it is proper and others say it is not proper. Is it proper for a man in such a carriage? Will you please settle this disagreement? J.

I think a man should not push a carriage. However, I may be mistaken and if so I would greatly appreciate your authority. E.

I see no reason why a man should not wheel a baby carriage except his own lack of gallantry and wish to be of service to his wife. Why His Lordship should walk blithely beside his wife and allow her to push the carriage—well I should think that she would wonder at his profound lack of manners and consideration. Beneath his dignity, I suppose he'd say—and one wonders at what point his dignity begins.

Eating Toasted Sandwiches

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How does one eat toasted sandwiches, such as toasted cheese and so forth? Are they eaten with a fork and if so are they cut with the knife or is it proper to pick them up in one's fingers and eat them? E. D.

Eat better it is to use a knife and fork to eat a sandwich if we are given these convenient silver pieces. These utensils are especially necessary when we are served toasted sandwiches of the three-decker sandwiches now so popular. With the knife cut off a mouthful convey it to the mouth with the fork and eat it before you cut off another.

Greys Arrange Memorial Services

In connection with the one hundredth anniversary celebration of the Duquesne Greys to be held at the Logan Armory Friday, Saturday and Sunday, a memorial service for the organization's dead will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. in Soldiers' Memorial Hall.

Col. Edward J. Kearns, [illegible] a member of the 15th Pennsylvania Infantry, who commanded the regiment in 1916 and 17, will be the principal speaker.

W. VA. DENTIST HELD IN DEATH

RENO, Nev., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Officers expressed the opinion that an inquest today would solve the mystery in the death of Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, killed Sunday night when she fell or jumped from a motor car driven by Dr. Carl Pierre Andre of Fairmont, W. Va.

Dr. Andre, a dentist, was held at the county jail on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. He was expected to testify at the inquest. Three persons who told officers they saw the victim, a widow, drop from the speeding machine also were summoned.

Dr. Andre said Mrs. Hutchinson, formerly a Deputy County Clerk at Fairmont, followed him when he came to Reno to establish a residence for divorce. The Sheriff said, however, the dentist admitted that he and Mrs. Hutchinson had quarreled here and that he had given up intentions of marrying her.

Dr. Andre's suit against Dorothea Howaid Andre was filed last week. It charged cruelty.

Ralph Quotes Bible In Saving Slayer

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Quoting the Bible and the "unwritten law" as justification of his act, Gov. James Rolph, Jr., last night commuted to life imprisonment a death sentence imposed upon Augustus Gignell, 37. Gignell was convicted of slaying his wife, Vera Gignell, and Sigurd Bjorneby in Los Angeles last year. Gignell was to have been hanged at San Quentin Prison Friday.

Widow Given Bulk Of Thompson Estate

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The will of Robert John Thompson, author of "The Proofs After Death" and other books, left the bulk of his estate to his widow who was also bequeathed the Thompson homes in Germany, Switzerland and France. The will executed in France in 1929, was filed yesterday for probate by Attorney Charles E. Pain. Pain said he did not know the extent of the Thompson fortune.

Mr. Thompson died last August 23 in Switzerland. He had been a resident of Paris for 17 years and was the creator of the Lafayette monument in the Louvre in Paris.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pimples and blackheads won't thrive very well if the skin surface had a thorough soaping at night, followed by applications of hot compresses and then cold ones. After the facial rubbing apply a mixture of one teaspoonful each of boric acid and baking soda. Use a piece of absorbent cotton and put it into the skin. A dry cleaning with a cloth which has been dipped in alcohol is helpful.

The girl with cheeks and lips as red as a poppy blossom can't keeping step with the rest of the beauty parade. She must use pores or rachelle powder, no drug store paint on her cheeks, only the faintest suggestion of raspberry cream on her lips. She can finish her portrait painting by adding eye-shadows of blue, mauve, green or brown. She must, if she is not to look weird, use the deft touch and the seeing eye.

Dead skin between the toes with flesh pink and inflamed are signs of ringworm. Ringworm can be picked up on the sands of bathing beaches. It is a trouble that should have medical attention. It can attack the hands, cause itching and discomfort. A member of a family suffering from ringworm should have his or her own bath mat as ringworm is infectious.

When purchasing a new toothbrush, soak it for a few minutes in a strong solution of salt to cleanse and harden the bristles. After using, rinse thoroughly and hang up brush-part downward, to drain. The life of a toothbrush is not longer than four months, after that a new one should be on the job. The gums should be brushed as well as the teeth, but more gently and always toward the teeth so there is no danger of damage to the tissue.

Tony Falls From Roof After Effort to Escape

CHAPTER XXIX.

Collin rose, and untied Tony's hands and arms. There was nothing within reach that he could fling, could use as a weapon. "There you are," said Collin cheerfully, "but keep your hands quiet . . . I still have the gun."

"Might I trouble you for a cigaret?" asked Tony impudently, coolly. "Yours are so excellent—Racquet Club, I believe—and I've none on me."

Collin laughed. His face, worn and tired, lighted with authentic amusement. He said to Fanchon briefly, "Light him a cigarette, will you? And give it to him. Carefully. He is, of course, to remember that I am a good shot."

She said so. Tony inserted it between his lips and drew a long breath. Mrs. Carstairs had left the room. In another room they heard her say, "Long distance, please."

While they waited Collin asked:

"What did you say your name was—your given name?"

"Fanchon," she answered low, knowing he spoke to her.

"Tell me, Fanchon. I can't look at you. I have to keep my eyes on your friend. Tell me—why?"

"I have," she whispered.

"No. I understand all that. But why? Remember our drive, through the park. Why . . ?" he urged her. His voice was something that pulled at her heartstrings.

She said, evasively:

"I had meant, you know, after the hue and cry died down to slip away, from all of you, where no one would ever find me."

"Of course. But you stayed. And that brings me back to—why?"

She said "I think you know."

"You do love me then?" asked Collin quietly, his eyes still on Tony.

"Yes," said Fanchon, "I do love you, Collin."

Tony said something under his breath.

"I understand Italian," Collin told him. "I am sorry to have to conduct this inquiry with an audience, but it can't be helped. That is all I wanted to know, Fanchon."

He spoke lightly. But he looked years younger. Mrs. Carstairs was talking; she had made her connection, it had gone through without difficulty, at that late dawn-approaching hour. She was speaking eagerly. They could not hear her words. After what seemed a long time during which there was silence in the library, she came back to them. Her face was flushed and her eyes very sad.

EVELYN DEAD

"He lied," she said, to Fanchon, "Evelyn—died. And under the name of Miss Smith. She is buried out there. There is a death certificate. All necessary proof. We will go out," she said softly, "and bring her home."

Fanchon screamed, suddenly, her hand clenched to her mouth too late, her nerves taut to the breaking point.

"Tony—why did you do it—why?"

He said, evenly:

I though perhaps it would be a little hard over you, my dear. I—wasn't sure of you. Later, if my little plan had worked out all right, I would have told you—"

"Then how did you find me?" she demanded wildly.

"By asking. By describing. I showed the doctor . . . your picture. Do you recall it . . . we had it taken one day together, at an amusement place? . . . 'this is the girl who died?' I asked. He looked puzzled. 'No, that is Miss Howard,' he answered. 'It is a very good likeness.' I made further inquiries and slowly arrived at a little of the truth. The rest is as I have already told you; your photograph in the New York papers and so the pieces fitted into the puzzle and soon the whole thing lay in my hands."

"Now," he ended defiantly, "what are you going to do with me? With her?"

He looked at Collin as he spoke.

"Turn you over to the police. For attempted robbery," Collin answered pleasantly.

"They have my record here," said Tony. "I'll go up for a long stretch. I'm wanted badly in San Francisco. It will all break in the papers. Fanchon's part of it. Your part."

Fanchon said, wildly:

"You're not to think of me—Collin. Just of yourself and your mother."

TRIES TO ESCAPE

He rose quite free. His hand was still holding the cigaret he had burned through the cord about his legs. He plunged through the doors onto the terrace. There were fire escapes around on the other part of the roof. There was a crash of glass. Collin leaped through the broken windows after him, heedless of his bare feet. The women stayed where they were, held by shock. Fanchon, her knees breaking under her, slid to the floor and somehow got to Mrs. Carstairs on her knees.

"Will you ever forgive me?" she said. "Collin. I'm afraid for him!"

The other woman laid a hand on her hair.

"Hush . . . Collin is armed," she said softly . . . "wait . . ."

She rose, and went forward to ring for Jameson, to arouse the night watchman also. But there was a scream. A high-pitched, terrible scream. Mrs. Carstairs stood still. Her hand was on the bell. Every vestige of color had drained from her face. Her face was gray and empty. "Not—Collin . . .? she asked softly—"not Collin . . .?"

Fanchon could not speak. Her eyes were distended in horror. She held her throat with one hand.

A moment passed. It was a year. It was eternity.

Someone stood at the shattered French window. It was Collin. He was white. He spoke hoarsely. The gun was limp in his hand.

"Over a parapet to the flat roof"—he said, dully—"I didn't fire . . . . the . . . . . I waited till he was by the fire escape . . . . . he pulled a knife on me . . . . . I . . . . . fired . . . . He has fallen," said Collin, "to the street . . . . ."

The entire world went black before Fanchon's eyes. She was falling, too; it was like the accident, repeated in a nightmare . . . . . there was cold sweat on her body, she felt deathly sick . . . . . she lost consciousness . . . hearing exclamations . . . . . feeling an arm hold her, bear her up toward light. But there was no light.

Invariably Those Who Belittle Themselves Overrate Others, Says Fay King

DON'T BELITTLE YOURSELF AND OVERRATE OTHERS
EVERYONE HERE IS SO CLEVER AND ATTRACTIVE EXCEPT — ME!
SNAP OUT OF IT!
YOURSELF, AT YOUR BEST, IS WORTHY OF YOUR ADMIRATION, TOO FAY KING

By FAY KING

Self pity is not so much the result of exaggerating one's own limitations as it is of overestimating the looks or ability of others.

Invariably those who belittle themselves, overrate others.

They see no flaws in those they admire and would emulate, and their enthusiasm for others blinds them to their own perfections.

Sometimes they admire in this exaggerated way a type very different from themselves and because they cannot be like this they feel they themselves are utter failures.

They forget that being one's own best self is the secret of personality.

Remember that everyone can be attractive and interesting in their own way.

Look upon yourself with a little of that enthusiasm you find it so easy to confer upon others.

Mary Gives Vent to Her Feelings

I smiled at my husband's beautiful young niece as she asked me if I objected to committing myself upon the query she had made me concerning the actions of her fiance and his father.

"I'd be glad to 'commit' myself if I knew the answers," I said, smiling at her. "On one point I can be sure, Noel is not 'nutty.' He is one of the sanest young men I know."

"Yes, ah," Mary drawled, in one of the most atrocious mannerisms I know, and exclaimed in penitence a moment later.

"I'm terribly sorry, Auntie Madge," she said. "I shouldn't have said that to you. But if you think Noel is so sane, just take a slant at this."

She moved to her dressing-table and picked from the top of it a crumpled letter, evidently flung there at the same time she was distributing her shoes with swift thrusts, to different resting places around the room. It held, I saw, a special deliver stamp, and I knew that it must be the one which Jerry Ticer had brought when he brought Marion the one from Ronald, and had bantered the girls about their "fellers spendin' all their money for special delivery stamps."

Two girls, each with a "sweetie" — another atrocious word which I loathe—and each receiving a special delivery letter from the current man of her heart at the same moment! To Marion it had brought the prospect of another gala time such as she had been enjoying all summer. To Mary the caustic reflection that her fiance was "nutty," palpably based upon some mention in his letter of the young woman whom Mary had described in such cross but effective terms a few minutes before.

With swift, nervous fingers, Mary smoothed the crumpled letter and proffered it to me. But I put my hands behind my back and looked at her steadily.

"You are too angry now to show that letter to me or to anyone," I told her gravely. "Tell me whatever you wish about it, but do not show it to me nor quote it until you are calmer."

She flushed, but her eyes did not flinch from mine. Dicky always says that Mary stands up to her lickings."

"I suppose I am a little beast," she said as impersonally as if she were analyzing the characteristics of someone in whom she had not the slightest interest. "But you'd be angry, too, if you were working your head off this hot summer, going into that awful city two days a week while Uncle Dicky was driving around the country in papa's big car with papa's big chauffeur and papa's noble self, to say nothing of a plump widow and her skinny daughter."

I bit my lips to keep back a smile at the vision her words evoked. But Mary detected my ruse and greeted it with a giggle.

"Yes, that is funny, to think of Uncle Dicky enjoying the society of either a plump widow or a skinny daughter. But it's the picture my young fiance is painting for me. And I suppose because he tells me on every other line how much he misses me, that I'll revel in his decriptions of the scenery inside and outside the limousine and consider it a real chatty letter. Well it's chatty, all right, but I don't care for that sort of small talk, thank you."

"Is she anyone you have known long?" I asked.

"As long as I've been going down to the Veritzen organization offices," Mary replied, and I realized that there was some "ancient grudge" between her and this girl she had so graphically described.

"You see," she explained, "she's the daughter of a man who used to be a sidekick of old Phil's—I know that our very best circles do not refer to their future father-in-laws—fathers-in-law—have it your own way—so flippantly, but I'm a natural low brow, anyway. The aforesaid sidekick up and died a few years ago, leaving them"—she began to check from her fingers—"item—several million cash, item, one widow anywhere from one hundred and seventy to two hundred pounds—wasn't I the chivalrous kidder to refer to her as 'plump'?—item, one skinny daughter, whom I described at full length a few minutes ago—don't forget I'm going to memorize your translation of my spiel—item, one friend loyal and faithful to memory and friendships fond remembrance—all that stuff, you know—bound up in the person of the great and illustrious Philip Veritzen, idol of Broadway and with royal blood in his veins although he isn't bragging about it over here."

There was a note in her voice when she spoke of her patron and future father-in-law, which if it held no venom, had no kindly feeling either. I could not blame her, for she knew as well as I that only my insistence had included her in that Christmas reconciliation of the Veritzens, father and son, under the roof of the farmhouse.

"The widow's too fat for old Phil—he likes a woman to be svelte and tall, preferably. I think with titian hair—" she glanced slyly at me. "Otherwise he might be consoling himself now for the awful turndown you gave him."

"Mary," I exclaimed sternly, "this has gone far enough. What do you mean by talking so outrageously?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

New Anesthetics Free Operations of Terror

Anesthesia and its uses in surgery have advanced more rapidly within the past quarter of a century than probably any other procedure in medical practice. We are reaching a place where the uncomfortable effects and real dangers of oldtime methods can be discarded and forgotten.

Years ago severe operations were undertaken without the use of any anesthetic whatsoever. With the introduction of chloroform and ether, much unnecessary suffering was eliminated.

It was a long time before more ideal and safer methods of anesthesia were devised. Among such was the introduction of gas-oxygen. This method of putting the patient to sleep is not unpleasant and its effects wear off very quickly. It has no harmful effect on the patient and on this account is spoken of as an "ideal anesthetic."

By the use of novocain many surgical procedures are completed under local anesthesia. The novocain is injected into the area that is to be operated upon. The drug so deadens the nerves that no pain is felt. This procedure is of great value in minor cases where for any reason it is not advisable to put the patient to sleep.

The latest and most remarkable development in this field is "spinal anesthesia." The drug is injected directly into the spinal canal. Though the patient is awake and conscious of what is going on about him, he feels no pain.

This form of anesthesia is particularly advantageous for elderly people who must undergo operation. Where the patient must breathe in gas and oxygen, or another drug, it is sometimes dangerous for an elderly person. The lungs are not as strong as in youth. In consequence old people are more prone to develop pneumonia, bronchitis and other complications. It is for this reason that spinal anesthesia has become so popular and is so successful.

Years ago the anesthesia was dreaded more than the operation. Today it is quite different! Have you ever spoken to a person who has submitted to anesthesia? I am sure he will tell you it is not an unpleasant experience and that it is nothing to fear. That is my personal testimony.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Girl With "Past" Can Be Careful About Future

Can a bad girl be a good wife?

Or will she two-time any man who trusts her?

That was a big question in Joe's life, for he had fallen for a wild little kid who started to travel the Primrose Path at 16.

She said she loved him, and wanted to snap out of it. Could he believe her? Could he hope to marry her, and feel secure and happy?

"Certainly you can't!" shouted the Anvil Chorus. But Joe couldn't believe them . . . didn't want to believe them. So he asked us and we put it up to the gang.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I read Joe's letter to you, in today's paper, and I want to tell my experience with a girl like his sweetheart, who had a past.

"I am 27, and a civil engineer. Four years ago, I met a girl with whom I fell deeply in love, and who fell in love with me.

"My friends, like his, warned me against her, and told me that she was 'fast' . . . that she had had a lot of 'affairs,' and so forth. At that time, she was 20.

MENDED HER WAYS

"I asked her about it, and she admitted it. But she said that since she had met me, she had gone absolutely straight, and she would never do as she had done in the past.

"Miss Martin, I am no angel, and I think that 'what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander,' so I believed her, and took a chance.

"Well, we have been married for three years now, and have a son two years old, a four-months-old daughter, a home as nice as I can afford, and the most faithful and contented wife on earth. I wouldn't change her for all the spotless 'good girls' on earth. She's a peach.

"Joe, if your girl had courage enough to admit her affairs, she probably is sincere, and means what she says when she tells you she wants to be on the square.

LOST FRIENDS

"I certainly fooled my croaking friends! I had to lose them when I married, but it was worth it. A 'fast' girl, who sincerely wants to, can be a good wife. Besides, remember this:

"A girl with a past knows enough about the seamy side of life to avoid pitfalls after marriage.

"I must close now as my little son is going to bed, and I must play with him for a while. If my experience will help Joe, I feel as if the time I have taken to write this letter is well spent. Here's luck, Joe!

"GEORGE."

That's a fine letter, George. My hat off to your fairness and faith . . . and to the honesty and courage of that girl of yours.

It's not an easy thing for a high spirited girl to settle down to the hum-drum round of married life.

Not an easy thing for a man to have faith in a girl who hasn't kept faith with herself.

You're a couple of gallant humans, and here's one who thanks God that the likes o' you are living in this heartachy old world! Treat yourself to a couple of cheers, and kiss the little chavers for me.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

CONSIDER, if you have the time, a highly amusing tale that was unfolded to me the other dawning by Mr. Tommy Lyman, king of the torch songsters. Mr. Lyman insists that the story is true in every detail and, inasmuch as the genial Tommy generally knows whereof he speaks, I can see no reason why we shouldn't believe him in this case. Thus, the story.

Banko, to provide him with a nifty name, was a burglar. The boys in his business had the highest respect for him, and the police weren't far behind in their admiration. For not only was Banko a first class safecracker, but he was continually inventing little gadgets that would help him in his business. Whenever the police found a safe that had been opened by the most scientific burglaring methods, they immediately suspected Banko.

Our friend was very proud of his inventions; prouder, in fact, than he was of being the leader of his dangerous profession. In common with all other gentlemen who live via the larceny route, money meant very little to Banko. As soon as a job was completed, Banko would spend freely among the dames and the cabarets. And to all who would listen, he would boast of his inventive powers.

"Some day," he would assert, "I'm gonna be a big guy in the inventing racket. Just you mark my words. I'm always thinking of new kinds of things. And when I put them together, four out of five of them work like charms. Very few guys can do that, can they?"

All of which leads us to the sad morning when Banko was finally jailed on suspicion of having been implicated in a safe-blowing some months back. It wouldn't be fair for me to state that he was guilty—but I might tell you that all the money he had realized from the robbery had disappeared in the cafes. He sent for one of the best crook lawyers in town and explained his position.

"Moe," he said, "I'm busted—and I'm in a tough spot. You're about the only guy in town who can get me out of this mess, and I want you to handle the case for me. Will you do it?"

The attorney was rather dubious.

"You say you're broke," he replied. "Is it fair for you to ask me to defend you without a retainer of some sort? I'd like to help you out, Banko. But can't you dig up a little something?"

The crook thought for a moment. Suddenly he nodded.

"Tell you what I'll do, Moe," he cried. "I can't give you any cash, but I'll give you something that's gonna be very valuable some day. I'll turn over to you a burglar alarm that I invented. It can't miss, Moe, because I know what I'm talking about."

The lawyer laughed loudly and long.

"That's rich," he howled. "Banko, the expert crook, invents a fine crook-catcher! So you've invented a new burglar alarm, have you? Ha, ha, ha!"

Banko kept on.

"I know what I'm talking about, I tell you," he continued doggedly. "I'm a fine inventor. I am, and this burglar alarm is foolproof. Take it, Moe, and defend me. It'll make you a rich man some day."

In the end, the lawyer took the case. He took it, not because of Banko's burglar alarm, but because he knew the crook could be depended upon to give him a rich fee some day. In due time, he won his case. And Banko was again a free man.

The latter gentleman walked into Moe's office the day after the trial and dumped his invention on the attorney's desk. Moe said he didn't want it. But Banko insisted. So the lawyer tossed it into a bottom drawer and promptly forgot it.

For six months, the burglar alarm remained untouched. As a matter of fact, Moe never thought about it until he opened the bottom drawer of that desk to put away a couple bottles of Scotch. He drew forth Banko's invention, regarded it thoughtfully for a moment and then phoned an expert.

The expert proved a surprise. He hooked up the alarm, listened to a strange whirring noise and wagged his cranium with much gusto.

"If this thing is handled properly," he told Moe, "it can make a fortune. I would advise you to patent it at once and put it on the market. I don't see how it can fail."

The lawyer followed the expert's advice. Within a year, he had discovered that an expert, for once, had been right. The alarm was one of the best that had ever been turned out. It is now in use all over America and is generally conceded to be the finest burglar alarm in existence.

Banko, of course, has never realized a penny on his invention. As a matter of fact, it is extremely probable that he never knew how successful his alarm had become. About eight years ago, he got his first inkling that his invention was all he had said it was.

He was blowing a safe in a downtown loft building when a strange whirring noise assailed his ears. Before he could get out, the police had nailed him—and nailed him properly for the first time in his long career.

Banko is now serving 20 years in an up-state prison. He is the victim of his own burglar alarm.

THE WISE guy in any profession always ridicules the play or picture in which his profession is employed. The doctor, for instance, never fails to grin at plays that deal with the medical profession. Newspapermen point with scorn at reporters in motion pictures. And so on down the list.

A short while back, one of the better known racketeers attended the opening of a play that dealt with rackets and their baleful influence on the United States. It was very evident to those in the know that the author had written his play from hearsay rather than from actual knowledge of his subject. And the celebrated racketeer writhed in his seat as the action unfolded.

Between the acts, he approached a newspaperman of his acquaintance.

"Tell me something," he inquired. "does the author of this play get paid for his work?"

"Certainly," replied the newspaperman. "Why?"

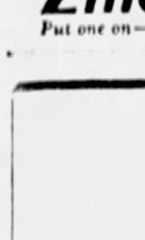
How Does an Actress Manage?



Matinee and night, two performances at the time of month that her monthly pain is at its height! An actress often must submit to such an inconvenience but does not suffer the usual pain. Pimples Terrible in Summer. On Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began at about the age of fourteen and kept getting worse. Pimples affected my face and were hard and red. They hurt badly, causing me to scratch, and then came to a head and festered. In the summer they were terrible. I had pimples on my body. They itched and burned, often causing loss of sleep.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. I purchased more, and after using two or three cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Albert Wilcox, Jr., R. 314 Horner St., Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 19, 1931.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

GUESTS DROWN FROM YACHT

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Coast Guards were searching the waters of Lake Erie off Rocky River today for the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lowry, of Cincinnati, drowned off the sailing yacht Polaris, while a midnight sailing party was in progress.

The Polaris, under command of Capt. T. B. Zickes, left the Cleveland Yacht Club about 9:30 p. m. last night. On the return trip, Mrs. Lowry fell overboard. A party of 10 was aboard. Capt. Zickes said he threw out a life preserver. Fearing his wife had failed to reach the preserver, Lowry leaped into the water. Neither was seen again.

Derelict Battles To Death For Benefactor

ROCHESTER, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Homeless John Nolan, 58, gave his life in the attempt to protect the property of his benefactor.

The formerly prosperous real estate dealer, made penniless by financial reverses, was shot through the heart early today in a struggle with an armed intruder in the public bath establishment of Peter Nick, who had befriended the elderly man and given him temporary refuge.

Police of nearby cities were asked to watch for Louis Lazaro, 23, a Serbian bootblack, who also had been a beneficiary of Nick's generosity. Lazaro's arrest on charges of murder and robbery was asked. Capt. of Detectives John P. McDonald said all evidence pointed to Lazaro.

ELECTION RETURNS, WCAE

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

WITH ALLEGHENY COUNTY seething in a political tempest and the fate of many candidates in doubt, radio interest tonight will converge almost entirely on the primary election returns to be broadcast by WCAE starting at 8:15 o'clock and continuing at 15-minute intervals until sometime tomorrow morning. Immediately the first count is tallied, WCAE will flash the news on the air, the race for County Commissioner, the battle for councilmanic seats, the spirited tilt in Common Pleas and County courts, the District Attorney contest and the war for supremacy in the offices of County Treasurer and County Controller will be reported with picture-like accuracy. . . . sidelights will be injected . . . It appears that the best place for a hot time in the old town tonight is alongside the loudspeaker.

Everybody else holds conventions so why not cartoonists? Fifteen of the world's most famous "funny" men are to hold a Cartoonists' Convention at 9 o'clock tonight in the studios of NBC New York and their wise antics are to be broadcast over a nationwide network including WCAE.

* * *

Mike and Herman, of WBBM formerly stars of the Wiener Minstrels on WENR, called on Pittsburgh stations yesterday. James H. Murray Herman was born in Allentown, Pa., and lived several years in Pittsburgh . . . Arthur Wellington "Mike" was born in Memphis, Tenn. . . . they are merely sojourning in the East . . . Mike and Herman hold the record in Chicago for continuous broadcasting, having four years to their credit.

Question a Day:

"Do most radio artists have big heads"—Frederick L. Carrick.

Answer—No. But that reminds us of a story. The chief page at CBS, who achieved his present position without a West Point or Roxy education, heard, not long ago, that many radio artists had "big heads." Nick decided to make his own investigation, and after two weeks of noting the size of every hat checked with him, he revealed yesterday that the average head size of the masculine radio performer is an even 7¼.

Ben Bernie, fresh from Saratoga, says he bet on a nag at ten-to-one last week, and it finished at a quarter-to-five.

Studio Lights

Count Felix von Luckner, world adventurer and lecturer who gave a very graphic account of the German sea forces in the World War over the air not long ago, and Joan Lowell, author of "The Cradle of the Deep," are to be guest speakers on the "First Nighter" program over KDKA Saturday night at 9:30 . . .

Bing Crosby and Freddie Rich, the orchestra maestro, live in the same New York apartment . . .

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph predicted three weeks ago that KDKA would be under NBC management ere the first of 1932 arrives . . . Charles Horn has been detailed to Pittsburgh by Merlin Aylesworth to study the new Saxonburg job before NBC takes the official reins . . . many changes in present personnel are anticipated . . .

Maine leads all states in publicity over the radio.

H. G. Wells, English historian and author, is to tell WCAE listeners "What I Would Do with the World" in a trans-Atlantic broadcast from London scheduled for Monday, September 28.

Today's Tid Bit:

Forgive us if this sounds facetious.

One of the downtown announcers chanced to remark yesterday that Ed Harvey was very witty.

"Yes," put in a production man you all know, "but the fellow who wrote 'Snowbound' was Whittier."

Don't throw that ballot box!

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Truth entertainers left in radio who accompanies himself on a ukulele . . . More than one orchestral concert has been saved for these old ears by fiddles weaving their way through "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" of Dukas . . . Save for Amos 'n' Andy, blackface teams have been elbowed away from the microphones . . . It's been two years now since there was a place in radio for the purely wise-cracking announcer.

What has become of Frank Moulan? And why haven't the broadcasters ever led William Danforth to the microphones for their Gilbert and Sullivan programs? . . . Wonder if Newton D. Baker has radio personality? . . . Only once on the radio have we been called "a laughing race." The tribute came from Hugh Walpole, English novelist. Wonder how Walpole's books are selling here?

The pipe organ will be the last instrument to succumb to jazz. Opera singers summoned to radio invariably declare: "My greatest thrill is standing before a microphone." Never see people snapping fingers to music any more. The weather always captivates the songwriters. When they are not singing of the rain they are lifting their voices to the sun. Hymns to the sun, peans to rain pour regularly out of Tin Pan Alley pianos.

STOCKING S-T-R-A-I-N
comes when you cross knees, bend, stretch, even put on your shoes! If elastic has been destroyed, silk threads break, starting ruinous runs.

STOP THOSE RUNS

Preserve the ELASTICITY* that makes stockings WEAR

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous runs?

New stockings are elastic—they give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is made especially to preserve the elasticity that makes even the sheerest stockings really wear.

The Lux Way to make stockings last twice as long*

When you put on a new stocking, fit it like a new glove—the seam especially. It will always look smarter if you do this.

Wash after EACH wearing. Perspiration left in the stocking will actually rot the silk.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity of the silk, making it lifeless, apt to break into runs, and ill-fitting. With Lux there's no rubbing. Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you gently press in a few dry Lux diamonds.

Wash this 2-minute way:
1. 1 teaspoon of Lux diamonds for each pair of stockings.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze gentle suds through stockings, rinse well.

Try Lux FREE. Try this wonderful care for your stockings, at our expense. Just send us your name and address, and by return mail you will receive a full sized package of Lux free. Write today to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. XP-2, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

CHANGE IN TASTE -:- Pretty Faces No Longer Are Essential -:- FILMS

Character Players Now Get Chance at Featured Roles in Films

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.

Sign of a changing public taste is the Universal film, "Pudge," which will feature Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts. Neither one of these performers are accustomed to playing sympathetic leads. Their niche in the movies has been to provide comedy relief in pictures starring more conventional hero and heroine types. And if it hadn't been for Marie Dressler, Wallace Beery and Edna May Oliver things would never have been different.

Zasu Pitts

Film producers suddenly have discovered that the public will support any human story—that they're even a little fed up on pretty, empty faces.

"Pudge" is a domestic comedy, that once saw production under the title of "That's My Daddy." It featured Reginald Denny then, but rewriting shifted the emphasis.

THEY ARE EXCEPTIONS

Some preachers' children have made good in the movies. Jack Holt's father was an Episcopalian minister. Victor McLaglen is a son of the Bishop of Clermont, in England, who once had a post in Africa. Shirley Gray is the daughter of the Rev. E. A. Zetterstrand, Swedish Lutheran clergyman. Carmel Myers' father is Rabbi Isadore Myers. Not forgetting that Al Jolson is the son of a cantor.

LATEST GOSSIP

After two months in Tahiti, Betsy Ruth Miller and Lila Lee are due back here on the 25th. With cable charges of $1 a word, Tay Garnett says he has heard very little of the trip. . . Saw Ivan Lebedeff carrying a cane. Come to think of it, he is one of the few actors who do. Among the directors, Josef von Sternberg and Erich von Stroheim have the rabbit. . . Kent Douglas is Douglas Montgomery again. He left here yesterday to return to Broadway. John Monk Saunders wants him for a lead in "Nikki". . . Frances Marion rises at 5 a. m. when she is working on a scenario. She writes in longhand. . . Douglas Fairbanks has two autographed teeth of Kid McCoy. He and the Kid used to box for charity and the teeth are souvenirs of a time when Doug forgot to pull his punch. . . James Quirk, publisher of Photoplay, and his wife, May Allison, are on their way back to New York. . . If she can get the doctor's permission, Joan Bennett will attend the coming tennis matches in an ambulance.

Lila Lee

Ann Harding tells of an interesting correspondence that grew out of a fan letter. It began shortly after the release of "Holiday." One day the mail brought a beautiful letter from a man connected with a children's playhouse in London. Although the message was addressed to Ann, it was obviously written to the character, Linda, whom she portrayed in the film. Therefore, Ann wrote that she was taking the liberty of autographing the picture he requested with the name of Linda. Since that time the man has written a number of letters. Some are addressed to Linda, and others to Ann. She always answers and in the character to whom they are written.

James Boys On Boat

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Jesse James" is being presented by Capt. Menke's showboat players on the Golden Rod at Montrose. Jesse, now a traditional outlaw of the frontier, following the close of the Civil War, we assume, is pictured in the minds of most people as a desperado, brutal and ruthless, dealing death on every occasion. But history records him as nothing of the kind, placing on his head a sort of crown of gallantry, sinning, if that be the word, because of the sins against him and his mother.

And that is the way the play presents him, making him neither a hero nor a ruffian, but a courageous sort of a chap, victim of an easily inflamed border community, and of the villainies of others. And, finally, the victim of a man whom he befriended, Bob Ford, who slew him for the large reward for his capture dead or alive. The latter incident, of course is historic, but the real fact is that Ford was a member of the James gang, while the play has him a member of a rival organization.

Heretofore we have not been accustomed to writing seriously about the Golden Rod plays, and we do it now not because the showboaters have suddenly become Barrymores and Lunts and Fontannes—far from it. They are just as usual, but it seems that in this play they most truly represent the atmosphere of a showboat whose visits along the rivers of the South gave the audiences the old-fashioned thrills and reactions they expected when it came 'round the bend.

Next week "Spooks."

Arliss Film Opens in Warner

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Chalk up another winner for George Arliss. It is "Alexander Hamilton," film drama of bewigged statesmen in knee breeches, which opened yesterday in the Warner. The picture, though not as impressive as "Disraeli" nor as amusing as "The Millionaire," is entertaining screen fare.

Political intrigue dominates the plot, and there is an element of modernity about some of its conversation that is somewhat out of joint with the post-Revolutionary settings.

Chief interest in the film rests in its character studies of men famous in American history. Washington, Jefferson and Monroe, as well as Hamilton, are seen and heard.

HUMAN AND WITTY

Mr. Arliss' Hamilton is human and real. He is witty and patriotic. He is strong, and he is weak. And, though he does go in for bombastic patriotic utterances once in a while, he still remains a very likable gentleman.

Alan Mowbray portrays the Father of His Country. He looks like he just stepped from the boat in Emanuel Leutze's painting of Washington crossing the Delaware. Montagu Love is Thomas Jefferson—a Jefferson who is mild mannered and gallant.

SOME DIRTY WORK

There is villainy in the picture, too, and the movie makers, evidently not wanting to besmirch the characters of any of our history book heroes, introduce a fictitious gentleman by the name of "Senator Roberts" to handle the dirty work. Dudley Digges is seen in this role.

Doris Kenyon gives a sympathetic portrayal of Mrs. Hamilton, and June Collyer plays a charmer who comes into Mr. Hamilton's life, much to his later regret.

Raynor's Gang In Academy

In the Academy are Sam Raynor and his "Gang," with Raynor as chief comedian. The bill is entitled "Too Hot for Paris." The cast includes Fay Tunis and Gertrude Reed, dancing lasses; Dolores Green, ingenue; Rae Reed, acrobatic dancer; Frank Mallahan, character comedian; Ray Parsons and George Lakes, young eccentric dancer.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Alvin will begin to operette on regular schedule nex' Monday nite, September 21, with "Three Little Girls" as the operetta. George M. Young, new manger of th' Alv., assures us that it is an "outstanding musical production," with a record of 32 weeks in Chi., after several months in Wiseburg-On-the-Hudson. Afternoon performances will be on Wednesday and Saturday. Prominent in the cast is Greta Alpeter, who studied her scale partly in the do-re-mi dept., Thiel College, Greenville. Seats for same are on the market now.

The Four Marx Brothers seem definitely alligned to the cinema and such of its appurtances as come under the head of stage presentations for another year, at least. Their plans are said to call for fleetlight appearances in certain screen temples and then the trail back to the California and its cameras. Negotiations they have had with Ziegfeld have come to this—nix.

* * *

Small Timer says the little dancing girl near the middle of the line objects to kissing, but the boy friend doesn't mind her scruples because he thinks they're not "catching."

Eddie Cantor, it appears, will stick to the screen and the writing of books for the present, barring a few "personal appearances." It is said, too, that when he does go back to the musical comedy stage he will have a gent named Flo Ziegfeld in his corner.

This from Joe Flynn, ahead of "Three Little Girls:"

An Englishman was told about another Briton who was so dumb that he thought a football coach had four wheels, and asked, awfter haw-hawing, how many it does have.

Pauline Lord, who, when last seen in New York in "Strange Interlude," was considered by some critics to be—Pauline Lord, will make her next metropolitan appearance around Thanksgiving time in "Distant Drums," by Dan Totheroh, one of Hollywood's army of penmen.

Mozart Airs In Screen Romance

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Since Schubert became popular as well as immortal through the operetta "Blossom Time," the people who write librettos and compose scores have looked through the musical dictionary for other models. Chopin and Strauss had their turn, and now Mozart makes his debut. Incidentally he dedicates a new theater devoted to "Klangfilm" musical pictures with an artistic pedigree. The Avenue Cinema, on Liberty near Seventh, aims to be cosy and classic. It achieves both with "Die Foersterchristl," a German operetta composed by Granichstaeden, whose melodies aren't as hard as his name.

George Seibel

Aside from furnishing thematic material and underplot, Wolfgang Amadeus has less to do with the scenario than the heroine, whose name is Christine and whose father is a forester—that's where the title comes from.

The other important personage is the Emperor Joseph, who not only supplies Mozart with cash in exchange for minuets, but also falls in love with Christine while on a hunting expedition incognito.

SEEING THE EMPEROR

When Christine's father loses a suit that would deprive him of a valuable piece of meadowland, a petition to the Emperor is the only hope. So Christl goes to Vienna, but finds it no easy job to see the Emperor. But she gets into the palace by hiding in a large vase that is taken in by some workmen. She meets her stranger again, and now takes him for the official stove-stoker of the palace.

Just as it would happen in a Grimm fairy tale or a Malitt romance, Christl's petition is granted and she is invited to the palace where she dances with the Emperor and the enchanter Mozart is commissioned to write his organ prelude for her wedding.

SMILES AND TEARS

Sometimes you wipe away a mist of moisture from your eyes at the sweet simplicity of Christl, and sometimes you chortle at the comical antics of Walperl, who pretends to be the Emperor's bosom friend. It's an unsophisticated film, even though there are wicked gossips at the court and Mozart is very flirtatious.

The good Emperor even presents Christl and her sweetheart with a clock as a wedding gift, and she grows into a happy old lady watching the two figures, herself and the Emperor, dancing the "Don Giovanni" minuet.

Every visitor to the new Avenue Cinema comes away with the positive assurance that romance is not dead and that the things that happened once upon a time are truly true. He also hears some good voices—especially that of Irene Eisinger as Christl—and some good music. Immortality is no guarantee of oblivion since Mozart has moved into the movies.

Sea Divers In Davis Film

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Jack Holt dons diver's paraphernalia and goes down to the bottom of the sea in "Fifty Fathoms Deep," new picture in the Davis. It is an average melodrama.

The story concerns a couple of pals and an unfaithful wife. This wife causes the pals to become enemies and to get into a fist fight. Then she runs away on a millionaire's yacht and bumps into Old Man Tragedy.

Richard Cromwell, who attained screen note in the title role of the talking "Tol'able David," is prominent in the cast. He is a fellow who has the best pal in the world and the worst wife. This lady is played by Loretta Sayers.

WILKINS SAILING FOR BERGEN

By CAPT. SIR H. WILKINS,
Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition.
By radio via, American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation.

ABOARD SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, Sept. 15.—The Nautilus is proceeding toward Bergen, Norway, where the scientific material collected during our Arctic voyage will be examined by eminent scientists.

We left the Spitzbergen coast at 2 p. m. Saturday, the high seas and heavy storm and wind keeping us continually in discomfort. The ship rolls, and water and spray coming in through the hatches and through leaks in the hull keep compartments sloppy and miserable.

Capt. Sloan Danenhower and some members of the crew have been suffering from rheumatic pains.

We will attempt to dispense with the service of a pilot, and try to make Bergen directly. We are carrying enough fuel for the trip.

COMMONS PASS ECONOMY BILL

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The British government's economy bill, authorizing the use of orders in council to effect savings of $350,000,000 in administrative expenses, entered its final stage today after passing its second reading in the House of Commons.

The House voted its approval by a count of 310 to 253 last night, giving the government a safe majority of 57.

Prime Minister MacDonald's appointment of a cabinet committee to investigate Great Britain's adverse trade balance was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that the government had decided to adopt a tariff policy.

The Daily Mail says there is a strong opinion in Parliament that a general tariff of 20 per cent on all classes of foreign imports will ultimately be adopted without an electoral appeal to the country.

The Laborite Herald, however, contends that a tariff cannot be imposed until the electorate has been consulted and hints that a general election is impending.

Suspect Arrested In Fatal Brawl

After kicking in the door to gain entrance county detectives yesterday arrested John Radick, 48, of 631 West Eighth avenue, West Homestead, in connection with the death in Municipal Hospital, September 11 of James Banderanko, 40, of West Homestead. Banderanko was injured, detectives say, in a drunken brawl in Radick's home, August 24.

Becomes Citizen In Borrowed Coat

Coatless, Robert A. McConnell, 29, of 610 Monterey street, appeared in naturalization court yesterday to be sworn in as a citizen.

Attaches barred his entrance, telling him to get a coat and come back.

Undaunted, McConnell, 5 feet 4 inches tall, searched through the federal building for a man his size. There was none. In desperation he approached a court bailiff who stands 6 feet 2 inches in his stocking feet. In the bailiff's coat, which nearly reached the ground, McConnell took the oath.

FINDS APPENDIX CAUSES CRIME

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—The belief that a man's criminal tendencies sometimes can be cured by taking out his appendix was expressed yesterday by Dr. W. A. Guild, of Chicago, a member of the Wickersham sub-committee on law enforcement. He told the American Association of Orificial Surgeons:

"A man, intelligent and well educated, was continually short in his books. While he was in jail, I removed his appendix. Now he is manager of a large chain store in Chicago.

"A forger was in jail for his fourth offense. When he got out he saw a Salvation Army band. So he stepped into a cigar store, forged a check for $5, cashed it, and placed the money on the drum. I removed his 'grapevine appendix' and he was cured of forging checks."

Dr. Guild has studied federal prisoners at Leavenworth and Atlanta. His report will be forwarded to President Hoover. He said he believed insanity and criminality were "very close parallels."

COURT ORDERS SEIZED WHISKY DESTROYED

Only Liquor Found Fit For Hospitals to Be Saved From 1,045 Quarts

Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court condemned and forfeited to the government 1,045 quarts of whisky and 160 bottles of gin, seized in raids in the Pittsburgh district by prohibition agents.

The court ordered all the liquor destroyed, except that fit for medicinal purposes. Such liquor found to be pure will be turned over to governmental agencies or hospitals for medicinal uses, by the court, upon recommendations of the Prohibition Department.

A large part of the whisky was seized in freight cars in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad yards, on its arrival here July 8 from Worcester, Mass., having been shipped to persons under fictitious names, as consignments of merchandise.

In a raid by federal dry agents yesterday confiscation of 30 bottles of gin, five bottles of rum, eight pints of whisky and a half barrel of beer on the fifth floor at 636 Penn avenue, was reported, resulting in the arrest of George Barrett.

George Oliver was reported arrested in a hallway of a building in Fancourt street, as he was delivering six bottles of gin. At 6939 Fifth avenue, where Sam Canestro was arrested, 214 pints of ale, 10 gallons of gin and one quart of rum were seized, according to the agents.

Tony Carlo was arrested at 106 Fourth avenue, following the reported seizure of 42 pints of whisky, two quarts of gin and four barrels of beer, it was reported. A 100-gallon still and 400 gallons of moonshine were seized in the home of Clara Troivani, at 2642 Converse street, agents declared.

Prohibition agents early today took charge of a truck at Hazelwood avenue and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. It contained three barrels of beer. The driver was absent.

Shortly afterward, they raided a house at 5420 Harrison street and confiscated a 100-gallon still, 14 five-gallon cans of moonshine, 47 barrels of mash and 1,200 pounds of corn sugar, they reported. The house was not occupied.

Let Sons Fly, Hawks' Mother Advises Others

MRS. IVA MAE HAWKS

Parent Visiting Here Tells of Flights With Frank

"Everyone ought to fly. It is so much fun. I don't want to come down when I get up. It is so quick and fast. No matter where I am, I don't seem far from home, only just around the corner."

Thus Mrs. Iva Mae Hawks, mother of Frank Hawks, speed king of the air, expressed her sentiments about flying during her brief stopover at Bettis Field yesterday. She spent a few minutes here on her way to Los Angeles, after visiting for three weeks in New York with her famous flying son and his wife. To the mothers of Pittsburgh she said:

"Don't be afraid to let your sons fly. It is the coming way of transportation. I like it so much, I have been up with Frank in all his planes except his last little one."

NEVER AFRAID

Concerning Hawks' mystery ship, she knew nothing except that the instrument board takes up nearly the whole inside of the plane, she said, and that it cruises at around 200 miles an hour. With true maternal pride, she discussed his flying career:

"He enlisted in the war when he was 22. He volunteered for bombing service to get across quickly, but they retained him as an instructor at Brooks Field, Tex. I think they realized right away his ability for flying. His wife has been a great help to him in his aviation career. I have never been afraid to have him fly."

She took a worn card from her purse, marked with penciled notations: "Wing over, barrel roll, an Immelman turn, falling leaf." It was signed, "Son." She said:

"That was the list of stunts he initiated me with on my first flight with him July 1, 1930. I was a veteran from the very first. I really wish I had a little plane of my own. Frank says, 'Tell Dad not to get you a car, but a plane.'"

SHUNS OCEAN FLIGHTS

Frank Hawks' sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Schuler, 13 years his junior, doesn't like flying, their mother said. Asked why Hawks had never attempted a trans-Atlantic flight, she replied:

"He doesn't think you should fly across an ocean except on a pontooned ship. I have been glad he never attempted it. His chief function as a pioneer in aviation is to show how quick and fast flying is for commercial purposes."

SQUIRREL HILL SLAYING LAID TO RIVALS

Search for Mystery Auto Owner Pushed; Trade War Revenge Motive Indicated

While the search for Joseph Gallo, said to be a fugitive from justice in New York, was being pressed for questioning in connection with the murder of Joseph Siragusa, of 2553 Beechwood boulevard, homicide detectives today were to grill more of Siragusa's customers.

Siragusa, district manager of the Empire Yeast Company, was shot to death in his home Sunday. Detectives believe that the "yeast king's" slayers were hired by another yeast merchant who was unable to meet Siragusa's competition.

TRADE RECORDS BARED

Sergt. Samuel E. Wheeler and Detectives Frank Dodson and Thomas Mulvihill, searching Siragusa's business records, learned that he sold about a ton of yeast a day. Vincent Catanzaro, 53, of Edmond street, an employe of the yeast firm, whose plant was located at 241 Cedarville street, said that Siragusa held several meetings a week with a half-dozen customers. The names of the men were unknown to him, Catanzaro declared.

During these conferences, Catanzaro said, he would be sent on long errands. Indirectly he intimated to Wheeler that the meetings were held to set prices of yeast.

"FREEZE-OUT" BLAMED

Their adjustment of prices would "freeze out" competitors, and it was the belief of the sleuths that one of these losing merchants resorted to the killing.

The murder of the "yeast king" may be linked with the slaying of Morris Curran, alleged bootleg supply merchant, who was "put on the spot" in front of his Perrysville avenue home June 24.

Homicide detectives denied that Gallo was one of those wanted in the baby killings in New York. The only one linked in the child murders was Vincent Coll, or Coll, New York authorities said. Coll was last reported seen in Los Angeles last week.

Two Get Jail Terms In Extortion Case

YORK, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—John M. Emig, for 15 years Justice of the Peace in West York, now resigned, and J. W. McCormick, former police officer in Spring Garden Township, were adjudged by Judge Ray P. Sherwood to be guilty of conspiracy and extortion. They were sentenced each to eight months in jail.

Emig and McCormick, who became state witnesses, were jointly indicted with Alderman Robert McGurk and Constable George McKinley on charges of conspiracy and extortion, in that they took $300 from a defendant in settlement of a liquor case. The other three men were found guilty of extortion by a jury, but were cleared of conspiracy.

Pajama-Clad Man Greets Dry Agents, Held

Nickolas W. Funk, jauntily attired in blue and white striped pajamas, answered the buzzer alarm at 6348 Station street, East Liberty, yesterday afternoon. Said he:

"Come in, gentlemen; wait until I dress and I will tend to you."

The visitors—two federal prohibition agents—waited.

Nick, true to his word, appeared fully dressed a few minutes later and served them, the agents said, with two glasses of liquor.

Taken before a United States Commissioner, Funk was held for United States Court in $2,000 bond on a charge of selling and possession of liquor.

Baby Killed in Plunge From 4th-Story Window

TWINS' ARRIVAL FINDS FATHER JOBLESS

Worried Mother Perplexed As to How to Provide For Their Seven Children

When the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nicholson awoke yesterday morning they were greeted by the tiny wails of two new six-pound arrivals. George Fred, six pounds and 14 ounces, and Ralph William, six pounds and 12 ounces, arrived shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday night at 1521 Rush street, North Side.

Mrs. Nicholson, 32, is the mother of 10 children. Seven are living. She is very worried. She said:

"I had only prepared for one baby, and scantily at that. My husband has been out of work for six weeks. I don't know what we will do."

Nicholson had been employed as a laborer at the Highland Park swimming pool. He has applied for a job with the Highways and Sewers Department, he said. He has been out of work since the first of August.

THIRD CHICAGO MOVIE BOMBED

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(INS)—A black powder bomb early today wrecked the interior of the new Regent Theater motion picture house. It was the third theater bombing in Chicago in the last 24 hours.

The terrific explosion shattered windows in the neighborhood and wrought damage estimated at $5,000. Two policemen were standing guard in front of the theater. One of them was knocked off his feet by the concussion, while the other was struck by falling debris.

The blast was regarded as a new outbreak in the feud between theater proprietors and motion picture operators. The proprietors recently broke with the operators' union.

LEBRIX CRASH HORROR BARED

MOSCOW, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Further details of the fatal crash of the French airplane Hpyhen II revealing that Marcel Doret, lone survivor, sustained a slight burn on his forehead, came to light today in a Tass dispatch from Ufa.

A resident named Mosieev told the Tass correspondent how he helped Doret extract the bodies of Joseph Lebrix and Rene Mesmin from the wreckage after their plane had exploded about 100 miles northwest of Ufa. He said:

"Doret, having had something to eat, asked me by signs to saddle a horse. Together we rode to the place of the disaster. Doret sought out his documents. We then started extracting the bodies. Lebrix was dreadfully mutilated. The body of Mesmin was in the cabin and covered with wreckage. The medical commission arrived soon afterwards and took charge of the bodies."

Doret wishes to fly to Moscow and on to Paris with the bodies, the dispatch said, and it is expected he will start either by plane or by train in a few days.

N. Y. Gang Kills Another Racketeer

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Frank Plescia, described by police as a "small-time racketeer and alcohol runner," was shot and killed as he stood on a crowded corner in the lower East Side conversing with a friend.

He was carrying a one-gallon can of alcohol and collapsed on top of it when five bullets were fired into his body. All that detectives could learn was that three or four men strode up to Plescia and shot him down without warning.

INCOME TAXES SHOW DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The September income and corporation tax collection, which began today, will be the lowest for any first quarter of a fiscal year since 1917.

Business depression, which swept away billions of dollars in speculative profits and sharply checked the onward progress of commerce and industry, almost continuous since 1922, was expected to depress the quarterly tax receipts to not over $270,000,000, as compared with $498,500,000 for the same period of 1930.

In March, $334,830,000 was collected as against $559,903,000 in March, 1930; in June this year, $295,765,000 came into the Treasury, compared with $526,443,000 the same month last year. Thus the September collection will fall to about $270,000,000 in all probability, while in December about the same amount will be collected, judging from the usual ratio. Last year the December tax income was $496,621,000.

From present indications, approximately $1,300,000,000 in income taxes will be collected this fiscal year, compared with $1,850,000,000 last year and $2,410,900,000 during the 1930 fiscal year.

HOOVER SCOUTS TRADE PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(INS)—The White House today took issue with cable dispatches quoting the London Daily Herald as announcing that President Hoover "is considering" a proposal for a world trade revival conference.

Theodore Joslin, secretary to the President, with whom the Herald was in trans-Atlantic communication, made the statement:

"Cable dispatches set forth that the London Daily Herald has announced that President Hoover is considering a proposal to call a world conference to deal with world trade. The announcement is erroneous. The facts are these: The Herald telephoned the White House yesterday asking that the President comment on its editorial advocating such a conference. I said that there was no comment to be made here. The Herald asked if the editorial would be considered. I replied that if the American press carried the editorial it would be read. That was the extent of the telephone conversation."

RESERVE BOARD OPENS PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The bankers who last night gave President Hoover an insight into the business conditions in the 12 Federal Reserve districts assembled about a conference table today to exchange views with the Federal Reserve Board.

The action of the regular meetings of the Federal Advisory Council and the Federal Reserve Board is never made public. In these conferences, however, the Council usually gives the Board a description of conditions in the different reserve districts and makes recommendations for action.

Upon the arrival yesterday of the 12 members of the Council for the quarterly meeting, they were invited to dine at the White House and give a first-hand description of conditions to the President. Later it was said, they had assured the President that the districts would be able to care for their own unemployment relief burdens this winter without federal aid.

Save your PISTONS with Amoco-Gas

SAVE your money, too, with Amoco-Gas! Amoco-Gas burns with an absence of hard carbon, giving increased power and mileage.

Directly above the pistons of your car is the combustion chamber, where is created the force that drives your car. The space between the top of the piston and the top of the chamber is carefully measured to a fraction of an inch.

Hard carbon deposits caused by incomplete combustion materially decrease this space and cause what is known as "carbon knock". The carbon also acts as an insulator, keeps the heat from being dissipated through the cylinder walls, resulting in a loss of power and increased consumption of gasoline and oil.

Fill the tank of your car with Amoco-Gas today. Save the pistons--increase your mileage--get better all-around performance.

NEW COAL FIELD PARLEY HELD

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A group of Wheeling men who are sponsoring a plan to create a new bituminous coal competitive field embracing West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio conferred yesterday for two hours with Gov. White at Columbus.

The plan was outlined in full to the executive, who suggested that it be placed before a conference of nine governors of coal-producing states called by the Governor of Kentucky at a date yet to be set. Gov. White also said he would send a copy to John W. Davis, of Clarksburg, and New York, a former solicitor general, and ask his opinion on the legality of the proposal.

The Wheeling group included J. F. Ebeling, Harry Jungling and Guy Dankworth, bankers; Manager-Mayor T. Y. Beckett, and Rowley Holcome, manager of the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce. J. M. Berry, chief of the Ohio Bureau of Mines, was among those who attended the Ohio capital conference.

They gave their names as Frank Kiminski, 18, of 55 Snyder street; Roy Stevens, 16, of 2105 Brighton road, and Wilfred Coughlin, 17, of 6 Armandale street. Groceries valued at $25 had been tied up in a bundle and left near the front door, police said.

BRIDGE BIDDING REFORM AIRED

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP.)—A system of bidding contract bridge, made up and sponsored by 16 experts, was introduced to 350 teachers of the game as the "official system." The teachers were gathered from all parts of the nation in the first convention of its kind, called to give instruction in the method.

Shepard Barclay, publisher of the Auction Bridge Magazine, described the system as an attempt to bring "contract down to common sense."

Ely Culbertson, well-known bridge expert, has opposed the system. He was not present at the convention and the other experts criticized his favored system of approach bidding only in guarded tones. The "official system" is a combination of features taken from a number of systems in general use.

There'd be no need for A&P if you could deal direct with the farmer. For in the "good old days" what the housewife paid for food and what the farmer received for it were exactly equal. But as towns and cities grew, the farmer received less and you paid more—because of a clumsy, round-about system.

By cutting out many wastes, A&P is able to charge you less, and pay the farmer a larger share of the retail price. We bridge the gap between the farmer and you.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Society folks cannot begin too young to ride in the horse shows, and some of the very youngest members of the smart set are accomplished riders, who own their own ponies and thoroughbred horses. Mary Louise Flinn has entered her horse, Fitzmaurice, in the Westmoreland Hunt Horse show to be held Friday and Saturday on the old polo grounds in Greensburg. And Mary Wetmore, of Greensburg, will exhibit Peaches. Isabel Patterson, one of the most skillful of the young riders, daughter of the Simon T. Pattersons of Dunlap road, will ride her mount, Vole, Hand her sister, Nancy, will show Red Wing. Little Rose, a Matty of Greensburg, which always takes in the Greensburg show, will exhibit Skip. Jeanne Berg, of Johnstown, will show Sir Bar.

To Show Horses

Jane Wade, daughter of Middleburg, Va., who rides in many a Pittsburgh show, will show Lady Stamper and Janet McKinney of Pine Hill Farm, Coraopolis Heights, will exhibit Dangerous Jane.

Other folks whose exhibits include Katherine Walker, of Shields, who will show Miss Lepper; Betty Bovard, of Greensburg, who has entered Runnalaya Fancy Bronner Imp; Natalie Molly McNeil, and Fox Hill, from her Fox Hill farm, stables. Marguerite McCahill will show Spring Beauty and her sister Marie exhibits Gay Girl.

Janet B. Cook, of Johnstown, will enter Diana, and Stella Coulter, of Greensburg, will show Buckle Moon. Elizabeth McNary, also of Greensburg, has entered Lady Jane.

Married Today

The Rev. Dr. Oliver Huckel, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Greenwich, officiated using the modern marriage ceremony he has written and used only once before. A reception followed and a luncheon in the south gardens of the Bruce estate.

The bride wore white net trimmed in lace and a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white asters. She had no attendants. The bride is a graduate of Drexel Institute and the bridegroom is a graduate of Yale and a member of the St. Anthony Club.

After spending the month of October in Mr. Dunlap's camp at Upper Saranac, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap will be at home in Greenwich. Their engagement was announced at a luncheon late in June given by Baroness Jan C. Van Eck, of Greenwich.

There have been so many hunts and horse shows in the past few weeks and so many more to come, that we have been hearing very little about other activities and plans. Besides engagements and weddings, news of debutantes-to-be ranks first in the interest of most folks. Contrary to expectations, Margaret Rowe, daughter of the Charles A. Rowes, of the Alder Court Apartments, will not make her debut at the dance her mother and father will give on December 28 in the Twentieth Century Club. The affair will be given for the school set. Margaret, you know, returns to Rosemary Hall, October 1.

Debut Plans

No plans will be made for her presentation until she finishes in the spring.

Katharine and Georgianna Collin are home again after spending the summer at Kennebunk Port, Me., with their parents, the Junior William W. Collinses, of East drive, Sewickley, who have a summer home there. Mr. Collin returns this evening, and Mrs. Collin expects to arrive tomorrow or Thursday. Georgianna is to make her debut in 1932.

BRADDOCK JUNIORS ORGANIZE

MISS MARIAN M'CAGUE — MISS MOLLIE HAYS

YOUNG SOCIETY RIDERS WHO'LL APPEAR IN THE COMING HORSE SHOW AT GREENSBURG

Meetings Begun By New Girls' Club Unit

The Braddock Woman's Club has a junior section. It was organized this summer, has its year book almost ready for distribution, and has already begun its semi-monthly meetings, all of which speaks well for the up and coming character of the membership.

Literature, music and art will make up the study program, in addition to which the members will undertake a certain amount of civic work. The life and works of George Bernard Shaw and Willa Cather have been chosen as the prose subjects of study, while Edwin Arlington Robinson, Stephen Benet and Edna St. Vincent Millay are the three poets selected.

As part of its art work, the club will visit both the International Art Exhibit and the Associated Artists' Exhibit. Congressman Clyde Kelly will be one of the season's speakers.

The first program meeting, next Tuesday evening, will consist of papers on the Pittsburgh composers, Ethelbert Nevin and Charles Wakefield Cadman, the former by Mrs. Charles Geisler, the vice president, and the latter by Mrs. John McFarland, treasurer, with illustrative selections by Miss Mildred Kramer and Miss Rebecca Gibson, secretary, and club singing of Foster melodies.

First Program

In addition to the officers, the charter members are Mrs. Eugene Gardill, Miss Lou Jones, Miss Mary McCleary and Mrs. Arnold Wenston. Mrs. George Martin is senior advisor. She is president of the senior club.

Music will be an important feature of nearly every one of the Aspinwall Woman's Club meetings this season. Music, of course, will have a prominent place on the program for the president's reception when the club honors Mrs. Franklin E. Sturgeon on Thursday afternoon. In fact, the program will include little else. Barbara Bess Wellman, contralto, and a string ensemble composed of Virginia Wellman, Alyce Martin, Katherine Rickert and Frederic Lotz, will present it.

Feature Music

Miss Charlotte Shallenberger, radio contest winner, will be guest soloist in October, and Marion Swan will give piano numbers at a November guest night when the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson will talk on "How to Think on Religious Fellowship." Francis A. Keating, president of the Grogan Company, will address the members at the regular November session.

December brings three events—a dinner party marking the anniversary of the opening of the clubhouse, the monthly meeting with the students of Aspinwall schools giving the program, and a Christmas party for the young people of the community.

December Affairs

"Polly," of the Post-Gazette, will be the speaker in January, and the club choral will sing; a colonial pageant will celebrate the Washington bi-centennial; Oliver J. Keller, publisher of the Post-Gazette, will tell how newspapers are made, and later events are a play by the drama department (and the Aspinwall Club has a real drama department!); a garden talk by Harold A. Nomer; a program in charge of the literature and arts department; a sunshine luncheon and a garden party.

Helen Carhart Is Married to Southerner

A very charming home ceremony is taking place at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Carhart, of Wilkinsburg, when their daughter, Miss Helen Carhart, becomes the bride of Herbert L. Coe, of Greensboro, N. C.

The room where the ceremony takes place resembles a formal garden, with pillars hung with southern smilax, a profusion of garden flowers, palms, ferns and a bower of pink and yellow cosmos and ferns where the marriage is being solemnized. Officiating is the Rev. George Taylor, of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg.

Bride In Satin

Mrs. William Maddox, as the matron of honor, is wearing a gown of primrose yellow satin with bronze accessories and carrying an arm bouquet of dahlias shading from deep bronze to orange and yellow.

The bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Miss Agnes Carhart, and Miss Elinor Kutchke, who wear gowns of powder blue and shell pink satin and carry bouquets of yellow and deep pink dahlias. Small Anne Carhart is the flower girl, and Daniel Chase Carhart, the page. Harold Hobe is serving as best man, and the ushers are William Paul Priest, of Miami, Fla., and William Maddox.

In Bridal Party

Mr. and Mrs. Coe are leaving by motor for the East, Washington, on October 15 to the state president, Miss Helen Blair.

Readings will be contributed by Miss Dorothy Mulbrey. Arrangements will be completed for a reception to be given her home tomorrow.

Georgia Onwig Pianist, On Program at Congress

Miss Georgia Onwig, pianist, will appear on the program marking the reception which the Congress of Clubs will give tomorrow for its new president, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman. The program will begin at 3 o'clock.

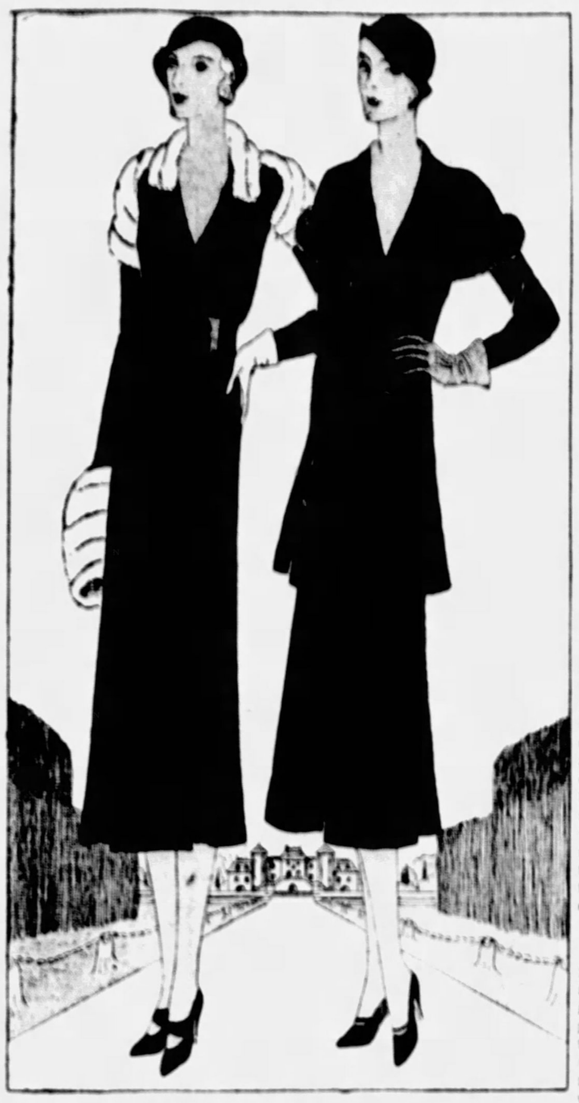
STYLISTS PRESENT NEWEST VOGUE IN CHARMING COATS

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 15. — Sleeves that stick to the straight and narrow path are being handed out rewards in the shape of all sorts of nice little fur epaulettes and cap sleeves. The use of the fur shoulder piece or fur cap sleeve supplementing and superimposed on the top of the plain sleeve is one of the season's newest notes. However charming these details may be, they, of course, date a garment, and unless one is in the pleasant habit of buying a new coat each autumn and winter, it would be wiser to forego a coat or suit with such details, as it will be discovered that when these fur trimmings are removed, much of the charm of the garment has been removed with them. And usually it is such novelties that determine the cost of the garment, too.

BUT, OF COURSE, there is no denying the charm of such fur epaulettes and shoulder pieces. They give a demure, quaint look to the coat that is decidedly attractive and new. In passing, we must mention that broadcloth is returning as a material par excellence for coats, extensive use and fancy weaves having failed to destroy its importance in the material mode. Although there is much talk of rough and fancy woolens, you will find that ever so many of the finest models and the garments from which ready-to-wear clothes have been adapted are of this fabric.

LENIEF HAS used dull-surfaced broadcloth in a very dark blue for the smart coat shown here. The odd epaulettes and puff cap sleeves that distinguish the otherwise plain sleeve are of snowy ermine, as is the small round muff. The self-material wide belt fastens with a large silver buckle. There are two inverted box-pleats in front.

* * *

AT THE RIGHT is sketched a delectable black velvet suit for afternoon wear. It is from the new Maggy Rouff collection. The deep cape collar is edged with a single band of sable, showing the important alliance of black and brown. The smart silhouette shows a fitted line to the hips and there is an ample flare. Six velvet-covered buttons fasten the side closing of the coat. There is a moderate flare in the lines of the skirt. A white chiffon blouse, sable trimmed, is worn with the suit.

CHANCE SEEN GIBSON MAY LEAD BUCS

WHILE GUESSES ARE in order as to the identity of the man who will succeed Jewel Ens as manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club next year, how about adding the name of George Gibson to the list of possibilities? One guess is as good as another until President Barney Dreyfuss officially makes known his actual choice, and as they've named about everybody from Socko to Ty Cobb, the suggestion that Gibson may have been selected can't be much farther out of line than most of the others.

George Gibson

The thought that Gibson may be a better bet than any of the rest guessed at so far is prompted by the daily attendance of the former Pirate catcher at the Forbes Field games and the intent manner in which he watches and apparently studies the movements of the players. Such a course might be expected of a man who had been picked for such a managerial job as will be open here at the close of the present season, and who, after being out of the game for some time, wished to get the best line possible on everything before taking hold.

OLD FRIENDS OF Gibson here feel that that's just the way George would act if he had been selected to manage the Pirates next year. He never tackled any job blindly, but analyzed the situation well in advance and knew what moves he would have to make when the time for action arrived. It wouldn't take him long to get right up to the minute, either, as he has always kept in close touch with baseball since his retirement and it's a safe bet that he has learned plenty in the games he has been watching at the local park.

If anything ever escaped Gibson's notice or his analytical mind during a game nobody around here ever heard of it. Besides, the relations between George and President Dreyfuss have been most cordial since the former voluntarily gave up the Pirate managership in the middle of the 1922 season after serving two and a half years, so there's no bar in that direction, and it wouldn't be at all strange if the club owner were to turn to his former skipper in such a situation as the present one here.

OFFICIALS OF THE club will not admit that anything has been done in connection with the managership, and insist that there will be no action in the matter until after the close of the season. But when you put two and two together, Gibson looks like as logical a guess as any that could be made right now.

It wouldn't be the first time that a former manager was brought back for a second engagement as pilot of the Pittsburgh club. Ed Hanlon was leader of the local Nationals in 1889 and again in 1891, and Pat Donovan served in 1897 and again in the latter part of 1899.

THE CLINCHING OF the pennants to a mathematical certainty by the Cardinals and the A's, who have had them won for many weeks as far as baseball chances go, is a matter of only a few more days. The Macks could go in today if they were to win and the Senators were to lose, as two more victories for the Athletics, or two more defeats for the Senators, or one win for the leaders and one defeat for the Johnsons, will sew up the muslin. The Cards need only three more wins to make the flag safe beyond any possibility of a slip, even if the Giants win all of the 11 games they have yet to play. Each game lost by the Giants will, of course, take one off the number the Cards will be required to win.

Max Carey

THAT THE A'S have a surprise coming to them in the world series is the opinion of Max Carey, old Pirate star and coach. He declares the Cardinals to be the best-looking club the National League has had since the 1925 Pirates, the team that came from behind to beat the Senators for the big title after losing three of the first four games.

"We beat the Senators that fall because we refused to be beaten ourselves," Carey says. "The Cardinals remind me of that old Pirate club, which had to be kicked around a little before the boys got mad and sailed into the other fellows. Last year the Cards fell down because their big gunners, Hafey and Bottomley, slipped up against the Athletics' pitchers.

"THE TEAM LOOKS more confident this season. There has been a big change in the playing attitude of both of these men. Bottomley seems to be set to be a world series hero, and Hafey will find himself this time, I am sure.

"Last fall, Hafey appeared to be pressing too hard. Sometimes, certain players are better in a short series than over a full season. With some others, it is just the opposite, because they try too hard. That was the trouble with Hafey and Bottomley last year.

"I ADMIRE THE Cards of 1931. They have been up there fighting all season, and if they are beaten in the world series they will go down fighting. McGraw and Hornsby are moaning, but they have no one except themselves to blame for their failure this season. They had fine teams on the field when they were intact, but the Cards had a strong team on the field and a splendid one on the bench, besides. The reserves swung the tide this year. Substitutes are as valuable now as the regulars. The manager

O'HARA LEADS HAGEN IN PRO GOLF

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—Peter O'Hara, of the Westmoreland Country Club, Pittsburgh, was leading Walter Hagan, five times winner of the title, 3 up at the finish of the morning 18-hole round in their 36-hole match in the first round of match play in the Professional Golfers' Association championship here today.

O'Hara gained a lead of 3 up on the first nine holes, and held Walter even on the in nine.

GENE SARAZEN LEADS

Gene Sarazen, twice P. G. A. champion and yesterday's medalist, was 3 up on Al Espinosa, of Chicago, when they reached the half-way mark of their 36-hole match. Sarazen had a medal score of 71.

Horton Smith went out in par figures, which put him 3 up on Walter Bemish, of Genesee, N. Y. A par 4 on the sixteenth boosted Smith's lead another notch and he became 5 up with another par 4 on the home green. Smith had a 73 and his opponent took a 79.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., and Arthur Gusa, Narragansett, R. I., finished the first 18 holes in a deadlock, each with cards of 75. Henry Culci, of Stratford, was 3 up on Willie Macfarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., when they ended their first round.

Cyril Walker, of Ridgewood, N. J., finished the first 18 holes 2 up on Ed Dudley, of Voncordville, Pa. Billy Burke, open champion, had to shoot par golf on his second nine to overtake Dave Hackney, of Lowell, Mass., at the sixteenth hole. Burke became 2 up when the Massachusetts golfer took a 5 on the eighteenth.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE VOLCANO THAT IS WORSHIPED—The active volcano Roang is worshiped as a god by 300,000 inhabitants of the Island of Great Sanguir, in the Malay Archipelago, midway between Celebes and Mindanao. The worshipers invoke the mountain in prayer, it figures in their religious services and obeisance is made whenever it comes into sight. This curious volcano is covered with luxuriant verdure to the lip of its craters. Cocoanuts grow on it in great profusion and those growing in the vicinity of the crater are preferred to any others. The Sanguir Islands belong to Holland. NINE BALLS IN A CAGE FROM ONE PIECE OF WOOD—The tedious task of carving nine balls, each in a separate compartment of a cage with solid bridgings, both balls and cage made from a single piece of wood, took A. D. Eller, of Liberty, N. Y., 4,000 hours to make. He first selected an 8x8x3-inch block of ash burl, then separated nine pieces inside from the bridgings, which consumed a year's spare time. It then took three years more to carve, rasp, smooth and polish the nine balls. Eller's tools for this unique achievement in woodcraft were a pocketknife, a wood rasp, sandpaper and emery cloth. A HAIRS-BREADTH—A hairsbreadth is defined as a U. TOMORROW: WASHINGTON SET A RECORD THAT LASTED 120 YEARS.

GILLAS SIGNED BY BURNS

By TOM BIRKS

Fans following the fortunes of the Dan Burns club, in the Independent Grid Conference, probably will get a big kick out of the announcement from Manager Clawson that Mancell Gillas, former Georgetown star and old-time Burns end, will be with the club this season.

Gillas, one of the greatest ends who ever was on the receiving end of a pass, played with Grafton Sullivan on some of the outstanding Burns teams.

Clawson is dickering with a former college backfield star, who will make quite a hit with the Allegheny River fans if his terms can be met. He also has been negotiating with Stan Berkman for quarterback.

SOCCER LEAGUE CONFAB CARDED

Soccer fans are awaiting with interest the Central Soccer League meeting scheduled for this evening. The election of one club to fill a vacancy is the highlight of the confab.

Crafton likely will be among the missing for it has not posted forfeit, and unless this is done at tonight's session, the franchise will be given to another outfit.

The Pierpoint team will have a representative at the session to try to get the berth if vacated.

National Tube, of McKeesport, also is interested in getting the franchise, but since it happens to be a Saturday league, the managers may not be favorable. Tarentum has the inside track, however.

The loop officially opens its season a week from Saturday.

MEINE, FRENCH SLATED FOR SLAB DUTY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Forbes Field baseball card teems with doubleheaders. No less than three bargain bills are on the home books for the next four days, the postponement of yesterday adding the third dual attraction of the week.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Pirates and Robins will jump off in the first doubleheader on tap. The two clubs are slated for a single contest tomorrow, this game to mark the last meeting of the season between the two clubs.

Bill McKechnie will lead his Braves into Pittsburgh Thursday, and little time will be lost in getting lots of action between the Freebooters and the Tribe. Bargain bills are slated for Thursday and Friday with the series due to close on Saturday. The Phillies will come on Monday to assist the Pirates in ringing down the baseball curtain. The last contest of the home season is carded for Wednesday of next week.

Heinie Meine and Larry French are the Pittsburgh slab nominations for today's games. Joe Shaute and Watson Clark, a pair of lefthanders, are likely to face the home batters. Meine and Shaute were all warmed up and ready for action at 3:30 yesterday afternoon when rain prevented a game.

Capt. Pie Traynor is likely to be out of action today, although the injured star may attempt to play. Traynor was painfully spiked in the seventh inning of the Pirate-Robin clash at Brooklyn Sunday.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 15.—(INS.)—Possibility of an inter-league series between the St. Paul American Association champions and the winners of the Pacific Coast Baseball League pennant race loomed today.

If Tiger Joe West, local middleweight pugilist, were over Paul Pirrone of Cleveland in the main event of Monday night's Bouts Schedule at Motor Square Garden, he would be ready to have a good chance of doing just that, as he displays the form he has flashed in his recent classes, he will be smack up against another battle for Jimmy Moore, Negro sellhooker of the Hill who already holds two victories over West, with a formal challenge dished at the winner.

It burns up Jimmy when he reads in the newspapers that the matchmaker whom he holds two wins is putting main bouts while he himself is having a tough time getting battles.

Not that he begrudges West all the work the latter can get but he feels the promoters are slighting him. Accompanied by his manager, Bill Heckman, Jimmy is making the rounds and virtually shouting his challenge from the housetops, and it may be that he will get together with the Tiger again in a hurry, probably at an early show in Duquesne Garden.

The signing of Ray Ivie of Canton, O., to meet Buck Hoff, Negro welterweight of Homewood, in the eight-round semi-final has completed the bill at the Bowl. In the other bouts, Jimmy Kelly of the North Side is matched with Marty Sullivan of Saxman, Mich., and Jimmy Reilly of McKeesport is paired with Tiger Joe Cook, South Side lightweight.

The card has been completed for Thursday night's show at Hughes Park, Millvale, in the main event of which Andy Martin of Homestead meets Frankie Bolarski of Etna. Benny McArthur of McKeesport and Eddie Hebner of Clairton are in the eight-round semi-final and Sammy Burns, Negro lightweight of the Hill and Steve Semich of Homestead in the second event with Johnny Hoffman of Scranton and Silver Montana of Aliquippa in the opener.

Pitcher Bob Wank, who was farmed to Cumberland, Md., of the Mid-Atlantic League, was released outright to the Atlanta club of the Southern League.

TEAMS RENEW HEAVY GRID TRAINING

CAMP HAMILTON WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 15.—Today will see the Panthers go through two more afternoon sessions at their mountain camp. A lengthy scrimmage will take up the afternoon period with the morning being spent perfecting the plays, kicking and passing.

The large squad is looking better every day. Yesterday the team went through its longest drill. This afternoon the third-string outfit will tangle with the varsity and attempt to continue its good showing of yesterday, when the first team experienced difficulty in running its attack through the scrub's defense.

Bob Hogan will be at quarterback, but both Cutri and Albert are speeding up. Mike Milligan and Hart Morris, guards, gave evidence they will have much to say before relieved of their positions.

Bob Morris, reserve center, was the first Panther injury of the training season. He came out of a scrimmage with an injured arm. The only other ailments have been bruises and sore muscles.

WORK UNSATISFACTORY

A heavy program was carded for Carnegie Tech's varsity squad today as a penalty for some extremely sloppy and unsatisfactory work in scrimmage yesterday afternoon. The first real game of the training camp period was staged and the varsity was pitted against a combination of freshmen and reserves. Despite the fact that Judge Steffen had many of the boys who have hitherto been considered first-stringers in action, they could make little headway and had to listen to plenty of caustic criticism from the head man.

Capt. Armentrout got away several times for long dashes but there was no sustained offensive at any time. George Kavel, however, was injured early in the scrimmage, thus robbing the varsity combination of one of its best ball carriers. Kavel's hurt was not severe and he is expected to be back in harness by tomorrow. Bert Postovic succeeded him and also did some nice running in spots.

NIGHT DRILL FOR DUKES

The Night Riders of Duquesne University will get their first real taste of night football tomorrow when they drill under the arc lights at Forbes Field, where they take on Geneva in the district's collegiate grid opener Friday.

Today Coach Elmer Layden will run his charges through a stiff workout, although many of the boys may be feeling the effects of the corn roast, water melon, pep meeting party held on the Bluff campus last night. Heinie Groskloss, of the Pirates, was one of the speakers, as were Layden, President Rev. J. J. Callahan and Dean Hugh C. Muldoon. About 70 varsity and freshmen players attended.

Jack Collins, of Dayton, O., picked up on the fourth and sixteenth and finished the first 18 3 down to Tom Creavy, steady youngster from Albany, N. Y., who refused to be daunted by the three-hole margin that his opponent held when they made the turn.

ST. VINCENT'S DRILLS

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 15.—The St. Vincent's College Bearcats are entering their last week's practice before the season's opening game. Their prospects look bright. He is working primarily on a pass defense, knowing that if he stops the aerials, there he has a mighty good chance to take them over.

TECH COACHES' TASK DIFFICULT—JONES

PEP TARTANS' BIG ASSET, TAD SAYS

(Note—Tad Jones, former Yale coach, several days ago visited Pittsburgh to look over the prospects of the Pitt and Carnegie elevens. His story on Pitt appeared in yesterday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Herewith is his steup of Carnegie.)

By TAD JONES
Member, All America Board of Football
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

Judge Walter Steffen and his very capable staff of assistants are facing one of the most difficult years of Steffen's long career at Carnegie Tech. The development of a first class eleven is not an impossible task, but it will require all of the coaching genius for which the Judge is noted.

Tad Jones

Ducanis at center is a veteran. He is a beautiful passer and as such, is a real asset to his team. It is likely that he will be hard pressed by O'Toole, who is a snappy aggressive player, but whose passing is a bit erratic. Flanking Ducanis at the guard positions are Sample and Burzio. Like Ducanis, these lads have had varsity experience, but they are lacking in weight. The center trio will average not more than 180 pounds. Behind those regulars are Kebe and Dreshar, a brother of last year's captain, and a very likely looking prospect. I will hazard the guess that last year's freshman tackles, Kroft and Foreman, will come close to making regular berths.

FLETCHER HANDICAPPED

Perhaps, Fletcher may be able to hold on, for he looks good, but is handicapped by an old injury. Kroft was especially impressive. He is big and rangy, very fast, and handles himself beautifully. With experience he should develop into a great tackle, but he has much to learn about the position. Elsesser, a reserve from last year's team, and Starfford, the longest man on the squad, also are possibilities.

At the ends, Lewis and Steward should develop as regulars. Both are strong, rugged chaps, very quick and aggressive. Ostrosky and Potts also are very capable. These four, with Troissant and Burns, who has played tackle, but who is being groomed as an end, should take good care of the flanks.

Judge Steffen has quite a serious problem in the backfield. Capt. Armentrout apparently is in the best shape of his career, full of enthusiasm and ready to go. The chances are that Kavel, a hard running, shifty, aggressive back; Heinzer and Duager, at quarterback, will complete the first string backfield with their captain. Bevevins, a quarterback, has real possibilities. For reserves there are Sayles, Pouncey and Brewer—not a formidable array in point of numbers.

ATTACK MODIFIED

Steffen must of necessity modify the Carnegie attack somewhat to fit the present situation, and at present is engaged in doing so. It is safe to assume that there will be plenty of deception in the plan and that the deception will be based on sound fundamentals. Success will depend largely upon Armentrout and Kavel. If these two men can carry the brunt of the attack without being injured or going stale, Carnegie will have a real chance. It is hardly necessary to suggest that Carnegie will not prove a set-up, even for the best. The Scots will have a young team and a green team, but a very aggressive and snappy one, for the squad spirit is excellent. It is from such squads that great elevens are sometimes built, and this Carnegie eleven may possibly prove itself sooner than expected.

ANJEANETTE HUNTER

Miss Hunter, Oakmont star, was low in the qualifying round of the annual women's Western Pennsylvania golf championship at the Pittsburgh Field Club yesterday, scoring an 84, and is a favorite to regain the laurels she held year before last.

MEDALIST WINS RIGHT TO MEET MRS. CAMPBELL

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

One of two prime title contenders in the Women's Western Pennsylvania golf championship tourney, in progress at the Pittsburgh Field Club, will be eliminated in the second round of match play tomorrow as a result of their victories in the initial person-to-person shooting this morning.

Mrs. Frank E. Campbell, of Stanton Heights, who has been a marked favorite to make a formidable bid to retain the championship she won last year at Westmoreland, will be opposed to the girl who, of all the field, has been conceded at least an equal chance of regaining the crown she has held on several occasions, Anjeannette Hunter, of Oakmont.

MISS HUNTER WINS

Miss Hunter, medalist yesterday with a brilliant three-more-than-par 84, this morning ousted any title contention of Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, erstwhile city champion, who was defeated by a margin of 3 and 1.

Mrs. Campbell put out of play Mrs. H. W. Christie, the Butler Country Club girl. The score was rather lop-sided, 5 and 4, as Mrs. Campbell, after playing mediocre golf in yesterday's qualifying round, slipped around the difficult links in figures so close to par that her foe would have had to turn into a flock of birdies to beat her.

Miss Kuhn took the measure of the 1929 champion, Emilie Rosebrugh, 5 and 4, and Miss Abernathy won from a former titlist, Mrs. J. B. Rose, of Allegheny, 2 up.

Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth, of Oakmont, defeated a club mate, Mrs. W. H. Duff II, 6 and 5.

MEDALIST IN FORM

Anjeanette Hunter, in defeating Mrs. Riley, was 3 up at the turn and out in 43, one more than women's par. The former city title holder started off to a quick lead when she defeated the erstwhile West Penn queen on the first hole, but the Oakmonter recovered, after they played nip and tuck for five holes, and won the sixth, and seventh holes with birdies and the ninth with a par 5. Their cards:

Miss Hunter, out	6	4	6	4	6	3	4	5	5—47
Miss Riley, out	5	5	7	4	7	4	5	5	6—48
Miss Hunter, in	5	4	6	5	5	4	5
Mrs. Riley, in	4	5	7	5	6	4	5

Mrs. Campbell was playing well night perfect golf in defeating the Butler hope, Mrs. Christie. She was out in even par figures, 42, being 3 up as they went to the tenth tee. Miss Christie only was two more than par, with 44, but a terrific onslaught, in which Mrs. Campbell won four of five holes, from the fourth to the eighth, for the last five holes of the contest, the defending champion was only one over par.

Mrs. Campbell, out	5	4	6	5	5	4	5	5	4—42
Mrs. Christie, out	5	4	6	4	6	3	6	6	4—44
Mrs. Campbell, in	5	4	6	5	5
Mrs. Christie, in	6	5	6	4	4

ALCOMA TOPS WILDWOOD IN BIG MATCH

The Alcoma Country Club captured the W. H. Nichols Trophy, emblematic of the inter-club supremacy between Alcoma and Wildwood county clubs, at the termination of their 36-hole home and home match, at Alcoma, yesterday. The final tally was 199 to 129, Alcoma winning the last 18-hole round, 116 to 34, after having trailed, 95 to 83, in the first encounter at Wildwood.

E. A. Weiser, Wildwood; E. E. Johnston, Alcoma; Fred Weir, Jr., Wildwood, S. L. Seemann, Alcoma, and W. J. Clapper, Alcoma, had the lucky number, net 72 in the sweepstakes.

One of the largest fields for a one-day tourney of the season is to be held under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Golf Association at the Oakmont Country Club tomorrow. Play begins at 8:50 a. m. and, teeing off at five-minute intervals, contestants will continue to wage battle in four ball matches until the last are sent on their journey at 4 o'clock.

The Allegheny County Bankers' Association is playing today at the Edgewood Country Club.

Today the Edgewoods oppose Fort Wayne, Ind., and must come out of the conflict with a victory or forget all aspirations for the N. B. F. loga until next year, a defeat today meaning elimination.

Art Garbark, Edgewood shortstop, suffered a torn ligament in his right shoulder and may be absent today. He was taken to Mt. Sinai Hospital. The score:

who looks strong on the bench is the fellow who will be up there in the fight."

REGIS TOOMEY, FORMER Pitt sports figure, has one of the principal parts in a motion picture football story now being filmed by Paramount. Dick Arlen, a former quarterback for St. Thomas, heads the cast, which also includes such former Southern California gridders as Russ Saunders, Nate Barragar, Jesse Hibbs, Harry Edelson, Marger Apsit and Cecil Hoff. Bill Blewett, coast official, is referee.

"Touchdown" is the title of the picture, and the story is taken from "Stadium," written by Francis Wallace, once Notre Dame' football press representative, and who also was a close friends of the late Knute Rockne. It's a new kind of football movie. The game isn't won with a touchdown in the last minute of play. Neither does the hero kick a field goal for the winning points in the final seconds. In fact, the hero loses the game, and what is more, this time the hero isn't a football player—he's a coach.

JOE DUNDEE, ex-welterweight champion, has branched out as a promoter and is trying to revive boxing in Baltimore. His new fight club, the Dundee A. C., opened last night at Carlin's Park in that city. Eddie Ross is the matchmaker. Joe was interested in a small way in a club at River View a few years ago, but this is his first real promoting venture.

Billy Gibson

Dundee serves notice on all the boxers he books that he will not stand for any stalling, and that all who fail to show action every minute will be barred from future shows. In this matter, Dundee has decided to be the judge and jury himself. He will sit at the ringside to watch every fight closely for evidence of stalling.

BILLY GIBSON, who once managed Benny Leonard, Gene Tunney and other Queensberry topliners, saw Tony Canzoneri defeat Jack (Kid) Berg and pronounced him a "mighty sweet little fighter and the best lightweight champion we've had since Leonard." Asked whom he rated the greatest champion in that class, Gibson replied: "Well, I didn't see them all, but there was a little fellow named Joe Gans who wasn't bad. I'd call it a toss-up between Gans and Leonard. Only by actually handling Leonard could you appreciate his ability as a fighter. He had everything, but above all he was smart. Because Leonard still is smart, he may be able to stage a successful comeback. I'll be the happiest man in the world if he puts it across. Frankly, though, the odds are very much against him. He's been out of action too long, and except for the fact that he knows a thing or two and has been a clean liver I'd say there isn't a chance in the world of his making the grade again."

New Grid League May Begin Sept. 27

A lightweight football conference, of four sections, was under way following a meeting in Spalding's last night, with 24 sandlot teams attending the confab. The new league is likely to get under way September 27.

Teams to be considered for berths include Christy Park, Etna Sycamores, Glendale Tigers, Pleasant Valley, Springdale Amicus, Armstrong Bulldogs, Allison Park, Beltzhoover, Oakland Community and St. Rosalia Preps. Others interested in the conference grouping included Oakland Community, J. J. Veronas, Oakmont-Verona, Broadway, Benton A. C., Westinghouse Alumni, Soho Oakleafs, Elpern Chevies, Papales, Highland Grove, West End Ponzie, Braddock Park Arrows, Arlington Odds, Evergreen Olympics, Krieger-Marx, Montour, Twenty-third Warders, Bloomfield Civics, Fredericks, North Side Traders and the Williams Club.

HOOVER CAN'T EMBARGO OIL

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 15.—(AP.)—President Herbert Hoover has telegraphed Gov. Arthur Seligman that he has no authority to place an embargo on foreign crude oil.

"The specific complaint on the question you mention, by the Independent Oil Producers Association, has been laid before the Tariff Commission and they are giving it consideration at the present moment," Mr. Hoover said.

Gov. Seligman interpreted that to refer to his suggestion that foreign imports have increased since curtailment of domestic production resulting in alleged unfair competition.

The New Mexico executive sent the President an appeal for an embargo last Saturday, in which he was joined by the governors of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

WHEAT LOWER, CORN HIGHER

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Wheat averaged lower and corn higher early today. Weakness of Argentine exchange had a bearish effect on wheat. Receipts of corn were meager, only 33 cars in Chicago today against 167 a week ago. Opening at ⅛ cent off to ⅛ cent up, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn started at ¼ cent decline to ⅛ cent advance and later rose all around.

Rallies which developed in wheat prices after an early dip were associated with bullish reports about the French wheat crop and with sharply reduced estimates of the yield of rye in Poland. A leading unofficial authority estimated Fiance's carryover stock of wheat at only 10,000,000 bushels, the lowest in history.

Tending further to lift wheat was comment that the United States wheat visible supply total had passed the season's peak. A steady reduction of the total was looked for in the future.

LONE STAR GAS DROPS AND RALLIES

Fuel Leader at Lowest Level of Bear Market; United Engineering Off

Lone Star Gas rallied fractionally in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today after having opened at 11⅝, a new low for the bear market and the lowest price ever recorded for the present shares. Only a few shares changed hands at the low level, and the stock snapped back to above 12 almost immediately. The stock sells "ex" the quarterly dividend of 22 cents today. Other fuels were quiet and narrow.

VITAL FACTS

TRUST INVESTMENTS

Legal Securities

WHEN a Trust provides that investments are to be restricted to those that are legal under the laws of Pennsylvania, the Trustee is at the present time limited to the following securities: the public debt of the United States, the public debt of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the direct and general obligations of any of the Counties, Boroughs, Townships, School Districts or Poor Districts of the Commonwealth, and certain mortgages on improved real estate.

Legal investments, if carefully selected, provide a strong protection of principal. Often, however, a limited supply of such investments is available and the rate of income accordingly is not as favorable as that offered by conservative securities of the non-legal class.

The Trust Department of The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh is directed by men of long experience in trust matters, specially trained for their specific duties. In selecting this Company as Trustee you may secure responsible management when most needed with the assurance that you will be prudently, thoughtfully and well served.

We invite you to call upon our trust officers at your convenience, or to write for our booklet "Solving the Problems that Confront Your Estate."

N. Y. Bankers Now Aiding Depositors

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

New York bankers are [illegible] with depositors of failed banks not only with their money but with their money. From J. P. Morgan & Co. down the line of New York's best [illegible] is forthcoming [illegible] tors in closed banks to receive a large part or [illegible] to keep up funds pro[illegible]

The [illegible] too widespread that the [illegible] doors a[illegible] way. [illegible] won't [illegible] of their money [illegible] unusual rather than [illegible] for bank depositors to lose their all.

I am told that depositors in banks which lately went under in New York City are likely to receive almost if not quite 100 cents on the dollar, thanks partly to the co-operation of the governmental bank authorities and responsible bankers.

NOT ONLY SO, but the aim is to make as large a percentage as possible of the locked-up money available without the embarrassing delays which have often attended the liquidation of closed institutions.

One very high authority thoroughly familiar with what is going on assures me that the leading bankers in New York are justly entitled to public commendation and gratitude for what they are doing. We all know how often and how bitterly the public condemns New York bankers; therefore it is a genuine pleasure to be able to accord them merited praise.

As a matter of fact, if the whole record could be laid bare it would be found that several of New York's most influential bankers have done a very great deal in the way of helping to keep things moving on an even keel during the last two years. An appalling number of patchings of weak spots has been successfully achieved. Naturally, such incidents cannot well be made public.

THE BEST-KNOWN chain of orange-drink places in New York has cut the price 50 per cent, from 10 to 5 cents a glass. Demand has gone up with a bound.

FORTUNATELY THERE is no overwhelming amount of railway refunding or refinancing overhanging the security markets. Railway profits have dropped so far and railway securities are so pessimistically regarded at the moment that it would be a hardship for a road to have to enter the money market on a large scale.

This column has been asked to compile a list of impending maturities as a matter of practical interest to holders of railway obligations and others.

The Bureau of Railway Economics recently presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission an elaborate table showing that of the total Class 1 railway funded debt of $10,763,065,286 outstanding on December 31, 1930, only $1,668,269,288 has matured or will mature this year, $70,299,513 in 1932, $187,697,740 in 1933, $265,945,749 in 1934 and $105,583,066 in 1935.

George B. Roberts, statistician of the National City Bank of New York, has kindly compiled from Poor's Manual of Railroad Securities a table giving maturities of $1,000,000 or more, by months, between now and the end of next year. Here it is, with the description of the obligations abbreviated:

Oil Stability Threatened By New Texas Drilling

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE TRANQUILLITY OF THE OIL industry is again being disturbed. East Texas still is the source of the trouble. Advancing prices for gasoline and crude oil have been checked. The renewed threat of excessive production has completely changed the outlook of the oil trade.

New orders of the Texas Railroad Commission, restricting the production of each well to 225 barrels a day, have been enforced, but the total output of the field has been much greater than was expected before the ruling was announced.

Last week the East Texas field produced an average of 414,000 barrels a day. Drilling activity has been going on at an unprecedented rate and will be responsible for large increases in production in the future unless the production allowance is reduced.

Drilling Restricted

IN ORDER TO LIMIT DRILLING the Railroad Commission has ruled that only one well is to be allowed on each 20 acres. This will check over-development to some extent, but it will not prevent uninterrupted gains in the output in future months.

The new menace of Texas production was responsible for a drop in the price of spot gasoline to 3½ cents a gallon at Chicago last week. This compared with a price of 6 cents a gallon a month ago.

The future trend of the market for oil and its products will be almost entirely dependent on the success of efforts to restrict East Texas production.

Murray's Plans in Doubt

THE FUTURE PLANS of Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, are in doubt. Martial law still is in force in oil fields in that state, but the expansion of output in Texas makes the chances of establishing a price of $1 a barrel for crude oil remote.

Unless support is given to Oklahoma's efforts by curtailment of production in other states, Murray may have to abandon his fight and be satisfied with a compromise at about the present level of 70 cents a barrel for crude oil.

New Proration Plan Suggested

A NEW AGREEMENT for the restriction of oil production in all parts of the country is under discussion and may be placed into effect. Thurman Hill, of the Kansas Public Service Commission, has proposed that the regulatory bodies of all the states work out a new proration schedule to cut domestic daily oil output to 2,379,000 barrels a day. The entire state of Texas would be allowed 900,000 barrels a day.

If Texas approves the Kansan believes that the plan could be made effective on October 1 for a 30-day trial. If the schedule does not result in reduction in stocks a further cut would be made in output. He proposes to curtail production and importants sufficiently to cause a withdrawal from stocks of 200,000 barrels of crude a day. The ultimate goal of the plan would be a total reduction of 71,000,000 barrels in storage in 1932, of 76,000,000 barrels in 1933 and 81,000,000 barrels in 1934.

PASS WESTERN ELECTRIC

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Western Electric Company directors have omitted the quarterly dividend due at this time. Three months ago 75 cents was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $4 annual basis.

Practically all of the stock is owned by American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The officers of American Telephone and Telegraph Company said today that, notwithstanding reduced earnings of Western Electric Company, the total earnings of the Bell System for 1931 are expected to be more than enough to cover the American Telephone and Telegraph $9 dividend for the year.

Due to the fact that American Telephone and Telegraph has scheduled a large expansion program for 1932, there is every indicattion that volume of Western Electric sales next year will be above the low 1951 mark. It is unlikely that further sharp recessions in prices of raw materials will necessitate such heavy inventory charge-offs as have been made this year.

CHARACTER

One of the first obligations of a young man starting out in business is to establish credit. Credit is the foundation of the whole modern business structure. No enterprise can go far without it. The factors entering into the establishment of credit are many and complex, and not the least among them is character . . . Character is not established overnight. A stranger, for instance, approaching a bank or business house without introduction, has not established his "character" as far as that bank or business is concerned. Character is built up by long and intimate association. A young man should make a banking connection as early in life as practicable so that his banking friends may learn to know him and be in a position to help him when help is most needed.

THE ROAD BACK -:- By Erich Maria Remarque

CHAPTER V

In the afternoon we are sitting around in a brewery yard. From the office of the factory comes our company commander, Lieut. Heel, and calls us together. An order has come through that representatives are to be elected from the ranks. We are astounded. No one has ever heard of such a thing before.

Then Max Weil appears in the courtyard, waving a newspaper and shouting, "There's Revolution in Berlin!"

But Weil has not done yet. "The Kaiser's fled to Holland."

Weil hands him the paper. Heel screws it up and glares furiously at Weil.

"All talk," he growls and looks at Weil as if he would choke him.

Max unbuttons his tunic and produces yet another Special Edition. Heel glances at it, tears it to bits and goes back into his billet. Weil gathers up the shreds of his newspaper, pieces them together and reads us the news. And we just sit there like a row of spotted hens. This is clean beyond our comprehension.

"It says he wanted to avoid a civil war," says Weil.

"What rot!" snaps Kosole. "Supposing we had said that a while back, eh? So that's what we've been holding out here for!"

COUNCILS FORMED

"Jupp," says Bethke, shaking his head, "just give me a dig in the ribs, will you, and see if I'm still here." Jupp establishes the fact. "Then it must be so, no doubt," continues Bethke. "All the same, I don't quite catch on to the idea. Why, if one of us had done that, they would have stood him up against the wall."

"Best not to think of Wesseling and Schroder now," mutters Kosole, clenching his fists, else I'll run amok. Poor little Schroder, a mere kid, and there he lay all bashed to a jelly—and the man he died for just cuts and runs! Dirty scum!" Suddenly he sends his heels crashing against a beer cask.

Willy Homeyer makes a gesture of dismissal. "Let's talk about something else," he then suggests. "For my part, I've done with the fellow absolutely."

Weil starts to explain how Soldiers' Councils have already been set up in a number of the regiments. The officers are not the leaders any more. Many of them have even had their shoulder straps ripped off.

He would have us set up a Soldiers' Council, too. But he does not get much encouragement. We don't want to set up anything any more. We want to go home. And we can do that quite well as we are.

In the end we elect three representatives: Adolf Bethke, Weil and Ludwig Breyer.

STRAPS REMOVED

Breyer came to our company as a volunteer and was afterwards given a commission. It is not only with Trooske, Homeyer, Broger and me that he talks familiarly—that goes without saying, of course, we were former schoolfellows—but when no other officer is about, he is the same with all his old mates in the ranks. And his credit stands high in consequence.

"Well, Heel, then," insists Weil.

That is easier to understand. Weil has often been ridiculed by Heel, so what wonder then if he now means to savour his triumph. That we feel is no business of ours. Heel was rather harsh, it is true, but he did go for them, he was always up and coming when there was trouble. And a soldier gives credit for that.

"Well, you can ask him, of course," says Bethke.

"But take a few bandages along with you," Tjaden calls after him.

The event takes another turn, however. Heel issues from the office just as Weil is about to enter. He has some message forms in his hand. He points to them. "You're right," he says to Max.

Weil begins to speak. When he comes to the question of the shoulder straps, Heel makes a swift movement. For an instant we imagine there is going to be a standup fight, but to our astonishment the company commander merely says abruptly, "Quite so." Then, turning to Ludwig, he lays a hand on his shoulder. "You don't understand, perhaps, Breyer." A private's tunic, that's the idea. The other is finished with now."

No one utters a word. This is not the Heel that we know—the man who would go on patrol at night armed with nothing but a walking stick whom everyone regarded as bullet-proof. This man is hard put to it just to stand up and speak.

AN ABANDONED ARMY

This evening, as I lay already asleep, I was roused by sounds of whispering. "Your pulling my leg," I hear Kosole say. "Fact," persists Willy. "You come and see."

They get up hastily and go out into the yard. I follow them. There is a light in the office, so that it is possible to see inside. Heel is seated at the table. His blue officer's jacket, the litefka, is lying before him. The shoulder straps have gone. He is wearing a private's tunic. His head is in his hands and—but no, that cannot be. I go a step nearer—Heel! Heel is crying.

"Can you beat it?" whispers Tjaden.

"Hop it," says Bethke and gives Tjaden a kick. We sneak off embarrassed.

Next morning we hear that a major in one of the neighboring regiments shot himself when he learned of the flight of the Emperor.

Heel is coming. He is gray and worn with sleeplessness. Quietly he gives the necessary instructions. Then he goes again. And we all feel just terrible. The last thing that was left us has been taken away—the very ground cut from under our feet.

"We're betrayed, well and truly betrayed, that's what we are," says Kosole grumpily.

Very different from yesterday is the column that lines up today and marches dismally off. A lost company, an abandoned army. The entrenching tool claps with every step—monotonous melody—in vain—in vain.

Ledderhose alone is as happy as a lark. He sells us tinned meat and sugar out of his American plunder.

Next evening we reach Germany. Now that French is no longer spoken everywhere around us, we begin at last to believe that peace is real. Until now we have been secretly expecting an order to turn about and go back to the trenches—a soldier is mistrustful of good, and it is better to expect the contrary from the outset. But now a bubbling ferment begins slowly to work in us.

We enter a large village. A few bedraggled garlands hang across the street. So many troops have passed through already that it is not worth while to make any special fuss about the last of them. So we must content ourselves with the faded welcome of a few rain-sodden placards loosely looped around with oak leaves cut out of green paper. The people hardly so much as look at us as we march by, so accustomed have they grown to soldiers returning. But for us it is a new thing to come here and we hunger for a few friendly looks, however much we may pretend we do not care. The girls at least might stop and wave to us. Every now and then Tjaden and Jupp try to attract the attention of one, but without success. We look too grisly, no doubt. So in the end they give it up.

CHILDREN FRIGHTENED

Only the children accompany us. We take them by the hand and they run along beside us. We give them all the chocolate we can spare—we want, of course, to take some part of it home. Adolf Bethke has taken a little girl up in his arms. She tugs at his beard as if were a bridle and laughs with glee to see his grimaces. The little hands pat his face. He catches hold of one of them to show me how tiny it is.

The child begins to cry now that he is pulling no more faces. Adolf tries to pacify her, but she only cries the more loudly and he has to put her down.

"Well, we must have a jolly good bath," replies Jupp, "and perhaps that will make the girls a bit keener, too."

"Yes, if bathing were all there is to it," answers Ludwig pensively.

Synopsis

Ernst, a school boy when he enlisted in the war, is telling the story of a handful of friends who survived the long years of trench warfare. They are marching homeward after peace is made, filled with a sense that they have fought in vain, that the whole conflict was senseless and futile. The mood is intensified when they meet American troops in unending columns, well fed, well equipped. But the Americans are friendly, the men fraternize, trade war souvenirs for food and tobacco. In a swift reaction it seems now as if perhaps peace may hold something precious that war has not wholly destroyed.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Marriage Business

Young Couple Inherit Estate From Aged Widow

"'Lo, Mary."

"'Lo, Jack."

"How's tricks with you, gal?"

"So so. You making any great flock of millions these days, Big Boy?"

"In Sleepy Hollow?" he asked, reproachfully. John Everett usually referred to his pretty home town of Gardner as Sleepy Hollow.

Mary Andrews shook her head.

They were neighbors. Mary lived with her mother. John lived alone, save for an aged housekeeper. John was only a couple of years older than Mary and they had been born and reared in those adjoining houses.

Everyone said that John and Mary were like brother and sister. John and Mary always agreed, for it was quite true. They had been through the same co-ed institution and they had played together since their mud-pie days.

Mary was trying to shovel a path from the kitchen door to the garage and John had come over to do it for her. There being no man in the Andrews household, John frequently did such bits of work for them. On the other hand, John's Sunday dinners were with Mary and her mother.

There wasn't anything that John and Mary did not discuss, in a logical and safe manner, from the merits of crullers with sugar coating to international finances and biology.

John owned and managed the town's so-called literary center, a cheerful shop where he sold books, stationery, office supplies, magazines and newspapers. John was not amassing millions, nor was he dodging any creditors. But he had ambitions.

BOTH AMBITIOUS

As for Mary Andrews, she was a secretary in the office of the local paper box factory. She was a skilled secretary and received adequate wages. But she, like John, had ambitions.

And while John Everett and Mary Andrews discussed a great many things and topics, matrimony was chief among them. They could discuss it quite safely. John had never suggested matrimony to Mary, meaning with her. The idea of marrying Mary had never occurred to him.

If he had ever suggested it, since the 10-year-old days when they played house, Mary would have considered him to have gone decidedly daffy.

They had one interest in common—good books. This made them both friends of old Mrs. Haddon. Mrs. Haddon was in her eighties. She kept a maid and lived largely in the past. She had an extensive library left to her by her husband 40 years before. These books were not strictly modern, as one might surmise. However, among them were a number of first editions, rare editions and others that were valuable to the bibliophile.

John and Mary, first grateful for being allowed to borrow many of these old books, later discovered that the old lady was rather in need. Together John and Mary pointed the way to money to her. They selected a great many of these rare books and sold them for her. John knew how and where to make the sales.

ADORES COUPLE

Neither he nor Mary would accept a penny of commission and the money from those rare editions proved to be far more than she would ever need for what was left to her of life.

Naturally she adored John Mary and used to scold them because they laughed at her suggestion of getting married to each other.

"Marriage," John said to Mary one Sunday afternoon as they sat in the sun room after dinner at her home, "is really a business."

"With more failures than in any other line of business."

Yes, because people expect too much; they seem to think that it is all based on love and that romance never dies," John went on.

"And yet, you'll marry, won't you?" Mary asked.

"I shall, if I can make a good business deal of it."

"I know what you mean. Jack some call it marrying for money."

John walked across to Mary's home through the snow early one morning, when she was just sitting down at breakfast.

"I was up with old Mrs. Haddon half the night, with Doc James—the old dear passed on just after midnight," he announced.

Mary arose, hastily, tears in her eyes. She loved the kindly old soul.

When the estate of the old lady was settled it was found that she had left her home and the $14,000 in the bank, residue from the sales of her extremely rare books, to John Everett and Mary Andrews, to be divided equally because, having no relatives, she had every right to do so and these two young people had been her kindest and best friends.

It did not take long to settle up the little estate. The old home brought only a few thousand.

"Well, Jack," Mary said, "it doesn't make us millionaires, but it is going to enable me to take a long vacation, make myself presentable, with a stylish outfit, and give me an opportunity to complete this business of marriage we have discussed."

MEETS MARY

"Good for you, gal! You'll win. You'll find a nice chap with plenty of worldly goods to make life comfortable and I sure wish you luck. As soon as I can break in Tillie Wayburn and her mother to running my shop I am going to do a little traveling."

"Keeping a weather eye open for a pretty young thing who has what it takes to live in luxury, meanwhile, eh, Big Boy?"

Mary went to the city with her mother, closing the house. John had a card from her showing the mooring mast on the Empire Building.

March winds howled and March snow drifted. John had his shop in safe hands and then he went away from Sleepy Hollow. In New York he picked up a folder showing Bermuda in all the tints and hues of a pastel of a rainbow. John promptly journeyed to Bermuda and the next morning, at Elba Beach, ran smack into a girl in a vivid bathing suit. It was her shapeliness that caught his eye. Then the girl turned, saw him and waved.

"Whatever are you doing down here, Big Boy?" she called.

"Well, and well, gal, so we meet again; the wor-r-r-ld is small," John answered.

They shook hands and laughed.

They sported in the waters, they drove in the "low-neck" carriages and that evening they danced at the big hotel.

John loved to sail a boat. He had already secured one. He and Mary slipped away for a sail.

Now and then, during the next two weeks, they met at the beach or in the dance hall, and had gay, old-time chats.

"I don't feel like dancing tonight," Mary said when she met John there. John was with a Miss Thorndyke from St. Louis.

"Nor I—let's grab the Angel Fish."

The Angel Fish was the name of the little catboat John had hired. They sailed across to Salt Kettle Ferry, then on down the shore and landed, walking across to Cathedral rock.

"How are you getting on with this Mr. Wheaton, gal?" John asked.

"All right—he's asked me already. How about you? The Thorndyke person has oodles of it."

"I know—I'm on the verge now and I have reason to believe that she won't scratch my eyes out when I propose."

Mary sighed.

John sighed.

"We certainly were wise, gal," John said.

"Oh, yes, anyone should know that matrimony is merely a matter of business. We'll be quite content and fortunate, Jack."

"Why not? Say, have you ever been in Syracuse?"

Mary shook her head. That was where Mr. Wheaton lived.

"I suppose you'll give up your book store when you marry the Thorndyke person and her fortune?"

"Gosh, I'd hate to do that."

"You could keep it and add a book bindery to it and handle rare editions and have a wonderful time."

"Yes, I could do that."

They were silent.

Ripples of living fire shot across the atolls where the water was breaking.

The phosphorescent waters were remarkable on this night. The moon came up, big and red, off the horizon.

The soft breezes seemed to sing through the cedars and back of them the small banana plant leaves rustled like a covey of women in old fashioned silk gowns.

Mary shivered a little.

"Cold, gal?" John put his arm about her.

"No, Big Boy—I was shivering over the thoughts of living in Syracuse with a stranger."

Silence for many moments.

"She doesn't like books," he finally said.

"She has plenty of check books."

BECOME SENSIBLE

John playfully put his hand over her mouth.

"A bindery is a swell idea—say, if you don't make it with this Syracuse bird, come home and manage my book shop, will you, gal?"

"I'd love nothing better—I always wanted to work in your shop."

"It's going to be tough, not having you about, gal."

"Just as tough for me, Big Boy."

"Kidding?"

He looked at her face. There were tears in her eyes. Suddenly he kissed her.

"Marriage," he said, "is just a business, gal. It's our business now—and it would be mighty poor business if we didn't marry each other."

"At last, Big Boy, you've come to your senses," Mary said.

Be Sure to Vote Today

The Polls Will Be Open This Evening Until 8 O'Clock, Daylight Saving Time.

Whatever your political beliefs, if you are qualified to vote, be sure to cast your ballot today in the primary election.

The polls will be open until 8 o'clock this evening, daylight saving time.

Vote as early as you can. The reduction in the number of election districts is bound to make for congestion, and the registration is exceptionally heavy besides. Hence, if you put off voting until the last minute there is a chance that you may not have an opportunity.

The Sun-Telegraph has confidence in the good sense of the public. We have had incapable and dishonest public offi- in a number of cases for no other reason than because of the people have failed to vote.

With a heavy honest vote there is no reason to fear the outcome.

Air Pollution

The Health Department's Investigation of Carbon Monoxide Meets a Long Felt Need.

Several years ago the then Mexican consul in Pittsburgh, Roberto Quiroz, in asking his government for a leave of absence, submitted a physician's statement that his health had been impaired by the carbon monoxide in the atmosphere of Fourth avenue, where he had his office.

The United States Public Health Service has suggested that the carbon monoxide in the air at busy corners is a menace to the health of traffic policemen.

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, has taken cognizance of these things and is securing records of the amounts of carbon monoxide emitted by automobiles at three downtown street intersections. The Bureau of Mines and the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research are co-operating in the investigation, which is to continue a year.

There are possibilities of considerable benefit to the public in this research. If carbon monoxide from automobile exhausts is injuring persons who must breathe the air downtown it is important that they should know how and how badly it is injuring them, and what they can do about it.

Let Them Hike!

Strange Young Men Who Beg Rides on the Highway May Not Be Trustworthy.

The Legislature passed at its last session a law forbidding people to beg rides of passing autoists.

It is a foolish law, because it cannot or will not be enforced, and there may be and probably are cases in which a person is perfectly justified in begging for a ride.

The purpose behind the law was good, however, for there are excellent reasons why hitch-hiking should be discouraged.

N. L. Wymard had an experience Sunday which has a direct bearing on the matter. As he was driving between Coraopolis and Crafton a young man begged a ride, and Mr. Wymard stopped and picked him up. The stranger pulled out a pistol shortly afterward and tried to hold up his benefactor. Mr. Wymard, it so happened, knocked the weapon from the robber's hand and the latter fled.

Federal Sales Tax

It Would Provide Additional Revenues Without Dampening Initiative of Business Executives.

Enactment of a federal sales tax law—a policy long proposed by the Hearst newspapers—is to be proposed at the forthcoming session of Congress by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, an influential member of the Senate Finance Committee.

The federal tax basis needs to be broadened along scientific needs in order to meet fluctuating federal fiscal requirements.

The present policy of borrowing to overcome deficits is of questionable wisdom, particularly since it would be more socially useful to mobilize the federal credit in a vast prosperity loan for social reconstruction and the return of prosperity.

A general sales tax would round out the system of federal imposts, and would provide large additional revenues without dampening the ardor and initiative of business executives.

The pressure of economic circumstances again makes a live issue out of the proposal for a federal sales tax, which in 1921 was defeated in the Senate by the slim margin of eight votes.

In the Senate investigation a decade ago, it was revealed that an annual revenue of $400,000,000 a year could be raised by a 1½ per cent tax levied on manufacturers of all commodities except a limited number of necessaries of life, such as fuel and foodstuffs. During the present abnormal spell, with widespread unemployment and part time employment, it seems especially wise to exempt the essential purchases of the needy from the proposed general sales tax.

The sales tax, which has been in operation in Canada, France and other countries, has long been advocated by the Hearst newspapers.

Unlike the present income and corporation taxes, which depend on the highly fluctuating factor of business profits, the sales tax is dependent on the dollar volume of trade, which during the depression has not shrunken commensurately with the fall in profits.

Any further rise in income and corporation taxes in order to overcome current deficits would be tending to deaden initiative and add to the factors contributing to the vicious circle of depression.

On the other hand, supplementary revenue from a general sales tax could be raised with a minimum of hardship on business.

Whether taxes are direct or indirect in form, the consumer in the last analysis must absorb them. Corporations figure present taxes as a part of overhead cost, which influences the price of their products.

In depression, the general sales tax would absorb in whole or in part the current deficits.

Under improving conditions, it would enable the Congress to reduce the personal income and corporation tax rates, and thus enormously hearten business executives and accelerate the revival of prosperity.

Old Uncle Sam is in the baby-feeding business, and the poor little lady on the right puts it all in few words. The country's prosperity suffers because it can't get rid of Prohibition. And Uncle Sam is having that faint feeling in the pocketbook because he can't get rid of Europe.

Well, men learn by experience, nations ditto.

And while some other things are lacking, we are getting plenty of EXPERIENCE. This picture strikes us so forcibly that we cannot resist the temptation to change one line of some famous verses:

And flowers to wither at the north-wind's breath,
And stars to set; but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Prohibition!"

What the Railroads Need

Rate Making Must Be Adjusted to Changing Economic Conditions.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE Interstate Commerce Commission in considering the petition of the railroads for a 15 per cent freight rate increase has an opportunity to check the influences which are tending to pauperize not a few railway companies.

With railroads still the backbone of our transportation system, it is essential to national welfare to keep up the credit of the carriers.

Congress recognized this fact, and in the transportation act of 1920 provided that the Interstate Commerce Commission should fix rates at a level which would permit the carriers to earn a fair return on property value.

Under the rates determined by public regulators, the railroads did not earn the stipulated fair return even during boom years.

The commission has gradually whittled down the rate structure since 1922 by making reductions on individual commodities.

IF the intent of Congress is to be carried out, rate making must become more flexible, and it must be quickly adjusted to changing economic conditions.

Declines in one direction must be offset by increases in another, or by increased efficiency.

Moreover, if the fair return concept is to be carried out, the railroads obviously need a higher schedule of rates in time of depression, when the volume of traffic is low, than in periods of prosperity, when the volume of traffic is relatively large.

The current insufficiency of railroad revenue is very genuine, and as a matter of fact it threatens the eligibility of numerous railroad bonds for the list of securities legal for the investment of savings banks and trustees.

A more fundamental readjustment is plainly needed.

IN the public interest, the railroad companies should be authorized by law to engage in all competitive forms of transportation, including buses, tracks, inland and coast to coast steamers (through the Panama Canal), airplanes and even pipelines. Moreover, outside agencies of transportation should be subjected to precisely the same type of regulation as the railroads.

Furthermore, the railroads should be encouraged to eliminate competitive waste through large scale consolidations and mergers, entailing ultimately systems running from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border.

The Canadian companies offer prototypes of thoroughly integrated systems of transportation.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission, after thorough and impartial investigation, should act courageously on the basis of facts in connection with the rate petition.

Then Congress at its next sitting should thoroughly inquire into the status of the railroads, and should remove the archaic shackles which prevent management from going the whole way in the direction of elimination of economic waste.

A new and revivified railroad policy, which makes for railroad prosperity, should in the long run be translated into better service for the public at lower rates.

Henna Versus Peroxide

Blondes have come into vogue with a rush, along with walnut furniture, mustaches and other trivialities. Almost any girl would rather be blonde than President.

Most men "see red" from the time when they fall for a red Noah's ark or a red sled, until the time when they fall for a red-headed Circe.

A limpid-eyed brunette may touch a man's heart; a blonde may get to his pocketbook—but a red-haired woman goes straight to his head, and makes him so dizzy that he can't see where he's going.

A brunette may know how to angle for a man; a blonde may lead him on; but a red-haired girl just casually takes off her hat, and he "follows the light!"

* * *

A brunette must be interesting, beautiful or rich, in order to fascinate men; a blonde must be cute, pretty and coquettish—but a red-headed girl doesn't have to be anything but RED-HEADED!

Gentlemen may prefer blondes; but when a flaxen beauty sees a Titian beauty gazing thoughtfully at her pet Boy Friend, she closes her eyes, mutters a prayer, and retires from the arena without a struggle.

All the famous sirens, man-tamers, and world-wreckers of history have been red-headed—either by nature or by preference. Very few kingdoms have been run by high-blonde-power. The power either on or behind nearly every throne has been a hank of red hair.

To be born with red hair is to be born with a gold spoon in your mouth, the wand of Circe in one hand, and the box of Pandora in the other.

There is no more danger in introducing the man you love to a beautiful red-haired woman, than there is in dropping a lighted firecracker into the gasoline tank.

* * *

Why all this sudden frenzy over BLONDES? Was Cleopatra a blonde? Or Helen of Troy, or Catherine the Great, or Queen Elizabeth or Pompadour? Not one of them! A blonde is just the "innocent bystander" when a red-haired woman gets started!

Isn't It So?

By the time it is popularized the modern new song is worn out.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

One of those days when you feel that you can't go on . . . when the old grief and discouragement drag like quicksilver at your heels—yes? Then read this. Maybe it will help you.

It's a story about Aaron Burr. Marquis James heard it in the mountains of Tennessee, where he's working on his big "Life of Andrew Jackson." At the time of the incident, Burr was old and weak. His ambitions had failed. He had played the game of life hard, and the bad bills were coming in, all together. He had innumerable enemies—only a few friends whom he could love and trust. Then, suddenly, his only grandson died, and his only child, beautiful Theodosia whom he adored, was lost at sea.

His friends surrounded him in a pitying, watchful circle. They did not think that he could withstand this double shock. But he went about his law business as usual, quietly, grimly. Sat there behind his desk, brooding—they thought him more dead than alive.

Then in rushed one of those fretty, pampered women, who think that the universe revolves around their petty affairs. Part of her fortune had been lost. She was hysterical.

"Oh, Colonel Burr! Oh, Colonel Burr!" she cried. "However am I going to get through this calamity?"

"Live through it, madame," said old Aaron. "LIVE THROUGH IT!"

"Live through it—" You've known times when you didn't think that was possible. Perhaps you're passing through such a time now. Some dreadful shock or loss—sickness, poverty, death. You're numb, dazed, heart-broken. Everything seems at an end. How can you go on? What's there to go on for?

But you can go on. And there is something to go on for. You can "live through it".....live through darkness and desolation .....and slowly, but surely, your desire will come back again and dreams will stir and a fire quicken where there were only ashes.

"But I can't rouse myself," you cry. "My mind seems to have lost its grip. I haven't the will to live. I can't make myself care——"

You don't need to make yourself care. Life will make you care again . . . life will renew your dreams and desires. It will do this automatically, without your volition . . . stirring new urgency in you as it stirs new sap in the spring. Life will do this for you, and you need not plan or struggle—YOU NEED ONLY BE WILLING.

But that's the hardest part about grief—OUR OWN UNWILLINGNES TO GIVE IT UP. We can live through it we can be happy again and eager and active and hopeful—but we so seldom want to! For grief is such a convenient escape from reality and responsibility . . . such a perfect alibi for laziness and cowardice and selfishness . . . such a simple way to grab the spot-light. And so we hang back in the soggy security of our self pity and general cussedness—and then wonder why life is such a failure!

Life won't fail you if you don't fail life. You can live through the darkest night into a brand, new morning—if you'll just follow on . . . do the next thing . . . go through the motions . . . BE WILLING TO LIVE.

The Discoverer of Animal Magnetism

By Archibald Henderson

The Italian scientist, Galvani, who has given his name to the formation of certain indispensable words in the English language and in many other languages, is acknowledged to be the discoverer of animal magnetism. His great discovery, which he himself did not understand, set the world agog and caused thousands of discussions and controversies in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. A magnificent statue of him was erected at Bologna in 1879.

Luigi Galvani was born at Bologna, Italy, on September 9, 1737. It was his original intention to become a monk, and he studied theology with the utmost intensity. His father dissuaded him from entering a monastery by pointing out the great service he could render to suffering humanity as a physician. Studying medicine with the same zeal he had formerly displayed in the study of theology, he soon achieved the reputation of being one of the most brilliant surgeons of his time. At the age of 25, by a treatise on the formation of bones, he won the position of professor of anatomy in the University of Bologna.

Galvani's discovery of the force, called after him galvanism, was the result of a singular accident, 24 years later. He had some dead, skinned frogs in his laboratory, which had been got for his sick wife. A fine knife rested upon one of the frogs. During his absence from the room, his wife, who had entered, was amazed to see the limbs of one of the frogs move in a convulsive manner. It was a miracle—the dead frog had come to life! She carefully examined the surrounding objects, and concluded that the muscular twitching of the frog's legs was caused by the current from an electric machine resting on the table. Galvani supported her conclusion, by showing that the frog's legs twitched on contact with the knife only when the current of electricity was generated in the machine. Galvani further tested the matter with a copper skewer through the frog, laid upon an iron railing. Whenever the copper touched the iron, the frog's legs would twitch.

Galvani concluded that there was some vital fluid or electric charge in all animals, secreted by the brain and distributed by the nervous system to the body. Eventually Volta gave the correct explanation: that a crude sort of electric battery was formed by the copper and iron and moist animal tissue. Galvani discovered a new source of energy. He died on December 4, 1798.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Challenger

At last there dawns a day when strength drifts out,
When every energy and impulse wane,
When high desire is gone and creeping doubt
Brings futile fears and shadows in its train.
Then rises in man's soul to meet that hour
A force surpassing any he has known.
A calm security, a certain power
Not to be turned aside or overthrown.

This is its part: to nerve his outstretched hand
Until it grasps, unfalteringly, the cup
Life offers him; defying, to withstand
The menace of the portion he must sup.
Supreme despite defeat, man then must be Himself a challenge to Divinity!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—This is one of those bleak days of mental sterility when a half a dozen three-line starts have been snatched from the typewriter, crumpled into a wad and tossed into the waste basket. A back-home paper, perused during the tedium, touched off a flood of memories.

Memories? Memories of ice cream eaten off mottled, marble table tops. An unexpurgated version of Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay. The dark glamour of the woodshed. The beaux who used to give small boys a quarter to stay out of the parlor. Flipping cigaret pictures for keeps.

The "notion store" where a dried up little woman tendered a piece of candy when you bought a spool of machine thread. Cousins from the country who dropped in at meal time. The cinder in the eye on the Sunday excursion. Plush upholstery with red corded tassels.

Apple silk pin cushions on the walnut bureau. Nottingham lace curtains. The girl up the street who was known as "fast." High button shoes, with curlicues around each button. Twirling the piano seat for sister to play. "The Ben Hur Chariot March." Dancing the polka.

The big yellow umbrella over the driver's seat on the delivery wagon. Women with knots on their knuckles from tatting. Women with "rats" in their hair. Side combs flecked with paste diamonds. Hanging on the back of the ice wagon. Red topped shoes. Pants that never came to the knees.

Pictures with a brace behind the head. The what-not in the parlor with souvenirs from the World's Fair and Niagara. The stereopticon double pictures of Kentucky's Mammoth Cave. The one-legged boy who flipped trains. Silence on the front porch when the cesspool wagon passed.

Mountainous toed yellow shoes. Brussels carpet with cabbage designs. The boy who wore his father's clothes, sleeves and trousers turned up and always known as "The Old Man." The Dirty Dozen. Souvenir spoons for Sunday dessert. Black and tan dogs. Shoestring bags.

More: Alligator purses that hung from belts by silver hooks. The senational murder done with a "32 caliber pearl handled revolver." Balloon ascensions. Beer gardens with tanbark on the ground. The sport who owned a trotter. Friendship bracelets with friends adding bangles. Heart lockets. Chatelaine watches pinned to the breast with a fleur de lis pin. Cloves for the breath.

Still more: "Chipping in" for a hack to the dance. Skirts that rustled. Ladies who stepped on street cars backward so their ankles wouldn't show. Raglan coats. Tan box top coats. Reefers. Papa's ostrich feather hat that he wore in the parade. Drill teams. Lodge night. The weekly band concert in the public square. The three town policemen in helmets. "After the Ball was over-r-r-r. After the Guests had fled-d-d!" Gold handled umbrellas. Sleigh rides. Glove boxes, silk covered, with hand painted violets. Burnt leather.

And still more: Hired girls. Cozy corners. Dens. "Over the Waves" on the mandolin. The fellow who had been to the Klondyke. Celluloid buttons shouting "O. U. Kid." Tin tongs, done up in a ribbon rosette on candy boxes. Chamois skin for the surreptitious rubbing of carmine on cheeks. (Bought on the sly at a drug store in a pill box.) The curling iron with burnt handle. Kid curlers. The sporting element known as "the horsey set." Pegleg pants. Mother-of-pearl opera glasses in a velvet bag that pulled together with a pucker string. Merry Widow hats. Glass headed hat pins. The girl who horsewhipped the fellow "who done her wrong." When traveling salesmen were drummers. Magic lanterns. Sleeping in the front yard with a handkerchief over the face. Lawn parties with Japanese lanterns tied on the clothes line. "Good morning, have you used Pear's Soap?" Memories. Memories! O, yes, and slippery elm.

Someone forwards this clipping from the Honolulu Advertiser: "O. O. McIntyre, of Gallipolis and Broadway, will be surprised to learn that he is skipper of an inter-island vessel down here in the tropics. Every time the steamer Waieleale comes in or leaves this port Capt. O. O. McIntyre is on the bridge. He is a genial dapper skipper but doesn't wear spats."

I'm always unspatted skipping.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

As a parent you may have had the experiences recently of having one of your near-adult children resent your actions toward him.

From him you may have had some sharp, answering words.

Having reached an age where it would be physically impossible for you to handle him as you would like to do, you are at a loss to know how to act.

There is only one thing you can do and that is appeal to his manhood.

Talk to him as if he were a mature person.

Angry words and threats to throw him out of your home won't impress him or subdue him—won't help you to win in an argument with him.

It is a great shock when a child defies you for the first time.

You wonder how he can do it, remembering the hours, and years you have labored to support him, the money you have spent to educate him, perhaps affording him comforts and pleasures you never had as a boy.

It is regrettable that children appreciate so little what is done for them and the sacrifices a parent must make.

Everything is their right—education and other advantages in the minds of your children, and how can they realize how much better off they are than you were at their age? But having children of their own, later, they will know.
